Repertoires and Cycles of Collective Action Mark Traugott, 1995 The modern era has generated a bewildering profusion of popular protest including widespread social movements and sporadic revolutionary upheaval Despite the seemingly chaotic character of such collective action social scientists have increasingly noted the remarkable regularities exhibited by even the most tumultuous social change In this volume sociologists political scientists and historians come together to assess the complementary concepts of repertoires and cycles as tools for illuminating the consistent patterns that emerge from the apparent chaos The significance of repertoires recurrent forms or tactics of social protest is explored in an essay on eighteenth and nineteenth century Britain by the originator of the concept Charles Tilly Sidney Tarrow whose work has most directly linked the concept of repertoires with that of cycles the recurrent peaks and troughs in the historical incidence of collective action contributes an essay that focuses on twentieth century Italy Other essays investigate the rhythms and logic of social change in contexts as diverse as sixteenth through nineteenth century Japan nineteenth century Europe and twentieth century America Through inquiries into the consequences of violent repression for social mobilization the struggle to control the linguistic terms of social conflict the unacknowledged antecedents of contemporary movements and the importance of movement families this volume demonstrates the usefulness of these two concepts and defines the relationship between them Collected from past issues of Social Science History with a new introduction and two new essays Repertoires and Cycles of Collective Action will reward an interdisciplinary audience of readers with the extraordinary vitality that emerges from this rich blend of historical perspectives Contributors Charles Brockett Craig Calhoun Doug McAdam Marc Steinberg Sidney Tarrow Charles Tilly Mark Traugott James White Fibre & Fabric, 1907 Curiosities of London John Timbs, 1855 Carpets and Rugs Roberts Beaumont, 1924 The Role of Tradition in Japan's Industrialization Masayuki Tanimoto, 2006-05-25 This volume explores Japan's industrialization from the perspective of indigenous development focusing on what may be identified as traditional or indigenous factors Japanese industrialization has often been described as the process of transferring or importing technology and organization from Western countries. Recent research has however shown that economic development had already begun in pre modern period Tokugawa era in Japan. This economic development not only prepared Japan for the transfer from the West but also formed the basis of the particular industrialization process which paralleled transplanted industrialization in modern Japan. The aim of the volume is to demonstrate this aspect of industrialization through the detailed studies of so called indigenous industries. This collection of papers looks at the industries originating in the Tokugawa era such as weaving silk reeling and pottery as well as the newly developed small workshops engaged in manufacturing machinery soap brush buttons etc. Small businesses in the tertiary sector transportation and commerce are also observed. Available for the first time in English these papers shed new light on the role of indigenous development and our understanding of the dualistic character of Japan's economic development.

He offers illuminating comment on a wide range of subjects on guilds and guild organization on women and Jews in the work force on the value given labor and on the sources of disaffection. His book presents a feast of themes in medieval social history. David Herlihy Brown University
