A Cultural Landscape Approach to Submerged Cultural Resource Management

Zachary Leo Meyer, 2014 The interdisciplinary field of marine and environmental affairs focuses on the dynamic relationships between society and the natural world These interactions overtime create a cultural landscape where archaeological resources such as historic shipwrecks serve as a tangible link to the interactions between humans and nature that have shaped the modern landscape The cultural landscape approach offers a framework to address interconnected social ecological systems in a holistic manner consistent with the direction of modern natural and cultural resource management This thesis utilizes the cultural landscape approach and the ideals of ecotourism to develop tourism recommendations for incorporating shipwrecks and other submerged cultural resources into the modern social ecological system of Lake Union Seattle Washington

Submerged Cultural Resources Assessment James P. Delgado, 2015-08-05 Excerpt from Submerged Cultural Resources Assessment

Golden Gate National Recreation Area Gulf of the Farallones National Marine Sanctuary and Point Reyes National Seashore The Submerged Cultural Resources Unit SCRU was established in 1980 to conduct research on submerged cultural resources throughout the National Park System with an emphasis on historic shipwrecks One of the units primary responsibilities is to disseminate the results of research to National Park Service managers as well as the professional community in a form that meets resource management needs and adds to our understanding of the resource base A report series has been initiated in order to fulfill this responsibility The following are the categories of reports that comprise this series Submerged Cultural Resources Assessment First line document that consists of a brief literature search an overview of the maritime history and the known or potential underwater sites in the park and preliminary recommendations for long term management It is designed to have application to GMP DCP s and to become a source document for a parks Submerged Cultural Resources Management Plan Submerged Cultural Resources Survey Comprehensive examination of blocks of park lands for the purpose of locating and identifying as much of the submerged cultural resources base as possible A comprehensive literature search would most likely be a part of the Phase I report but in some cases may be postponed until Phase II Phase I Reconnaissance of target areas with remote sensing and visual survey techniques to establish location of any archeological sites or anomalous features that may suggest the presence of archeological sites Phase II Evaluation of archeological sites or anomalous features derived from remote sensing instruments to confirm their nature and if possible their significance This may involve exploratory removal of overburden Submerged Cultural Resources Study A document that discusses in detail all known underwater archeological sites in a given park This may involve test excavations The intended audience is managerial and professional not the general public Submerged Cultural Resources Site Report Exhaustive documentation of one archeological site which may involve a partial or complete site excavation The intended audience is primarily professional and incidentally managerial About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Out of the Blue John H. Jameson, Della A. Scott-Ireton, 2007-04-15 While there are several books in the field of preservation and heritage protection for terrestrial archaeology there are very few resources for archaeologists working with maritime and submerged cultural heritage This book brings together state of the art ideas research and scholarship associated with maritime public education and interpretation It will add to a limited body of knowledge in a field that is steadily growing

Great Lakes Underwater Cultural Resources Kenneth J. Vrana, Edward Mahoney, 1993

The New Urban Park Hal Rothman, 2004 From Yellowstone to the Great Smoky Mountains America s national parks are sprawling tracts of serenity most of them carved out of public land for recreation and preservation around the turn of the last century America has changed dramatically since then and so has its conceptions of what parkland ought to be In this book one of our premier environmental historians looks at the new phenomenon of urban parks focusing on San Francisco s Golden Gate National Recreation Area as a prototype for the twenty first century Cobbled together from public and private lands in a politically charged arena the GGNRA represents a new direction for parks as it highlights the long standing tension within the National Park Service between preservation and recreation Long a center of conservation the Bay Area was well positioned for such an innovative concept Writing with insight and wit Rothman reveals the many complex challenges that local leaders politicians and the NPS faced as they attempted to administer sites in this area He tells how Representative Phillip Burton guided a comprehensive bill through Congress to establish the park and how he and others expanded the acreage of the GGNRA redefined its mission to the public forged an identity for interconnected parks and struggled against formidable odds to obtain the San Francisco Presidio and convert it into a national park Engagingly written The New Urban Park offers a balanced examination of grassroots politics and its effect on municipal state and federal policy While most national parks dominate the economies of their regions GGNRA was from the start tied to the multifaceted needs of its public and political constituents including neighborhood ethnic and labor interests as well as the usual supporters from the conservation movement As a national recreation area GGNRA helped redefine that category in the public mind By the dawn of the new century it had already become one of the premier national park areas in terms of visitation Now as public lands become increasingly scarce GGNRA may well represent the future of national parks in America Rothman shows that this model works and his book will be an invaluable resource for planning tomorrow s parks
