

5 Steps to Writing Poem

Inspiration

A good poem comes from a good idea. Where can you get your inspiration from? The subject of the poem can be the starting point. If you haven't got a subject you could look outside the window for inspiration, you have a strong idea that you want to get across.

Brainstorm

Try writing the subject of your poem down and brainstorm. Does the word trigger any memories? Perhaps some ideas have already come to you. Try writing these down. How do those connect to other ideas on your sheet? How could you describe them?

Form and Style

In class you will have studied poets who write in different styles. Do those a poet you particularly like, what is it about their style of writing that you enjoy?

Five Senses

Think about your five senses. Imagine you are writing a poem about the beach. What can you see, the waves lapping on the shore? What do the sounds like? Can you smell the salty air? All of your senses can give you material for your poem.

Word Choice

There are many ways of describing the same thing or concept. Look at the adjectives you are using, and what happens if you change them.
