ABSTRACT

Smoking is a menace all over the world and Bangladesh is no exception. The knowledge on harmful effects of smoking seems to be widespread but still the prevalence of smoking is known to be increasing in the developing countries. Although smoking is not a good habit and is known to be associated with lung cancer, cardiovascular, respiratory, urogenital, elementary systems and others diseases, a large proportion of our population is addicted to it irrespective of age, caste, creed and status. This cross sectional study was conducted in selective secondary high school in Dhaka City. The main objective of the study was to assess the smoking habit and their influencing factors among the school students. Data were collected from 294 students using self administered questionnaire. Data analysis revealed that out of 294 students 76.9% were boys and the rest were girls (22.7%) with boys and girls ratio was 3.3:1. The mean age of the students was 14.3 years (SD) 1.0 years ranging from 12 years to 18 years. Among the studied students 11.2% were currently smokers. The most frequent type of smoking was cigarette (84.8%) followed by bidi. Peer pressure (72.7%) appeared to be the main factors for smoking followed by father's smoking. However, a good number of student's did not mention any reason. Bi-variate analysis shows that tobacco use was significantly associated with age, sex, class and family size ( $p < 0.05$ ) indicating smoking was found to be higher among older students aged 16 years and above and male sex. It was also higher among the student of class X. The finding of this study suggests that as smoking is gradually increasing among the students. As smoking is usually initiated during adolescence, it should be a public health priority to educate this group regarding the hazards of smoking, so that their behavior can be modified. So, strong legislative measure is warranted to prevent the consequence of tobacco use among the younger segment of the population.

It is a well establish fact that the smoking is injurious to health and it also responsible for some irreversible changes in human body. It is injurious not only to those who smoke, but also equally harmful to those who live with the smokers. Epidemiological studies have been shown that tobacco smoking plays an important role in the causation of wide range of disease such as various forms of cancer, bronchitis, ulcer etc. Tobacco smoking has also been found to be associated with induced abortion, still birth and neonatal deaths (WHO 1975).<sup>2</sup> The WHO expert committee on smoking and its effect on health came across with the evidences that millions of lives had been adversely affected by cigarette smoking every year (WHO 1983).<sup>3</sup>

A more grown up child builds a gang with his fellows to smoke just like the adults smoke in a gossip. They have an inborn eager to gain newer experience, so finding his dear friends to be with a stick he feels eager to take one and gradually becomes habituated. Sometimes, just for the sake of courtesy or non-smoker friends may take a cigarette with his smoking friends and thus gradually become a habituated smoker. Smoking is taken as a part of entertainment extending from rural area by offering hukka and Biri to high social class giving filter tipped cigarette. Cigarette smoking being a very cheap way of entertainment has gained in popularity and curiosity increased among the children. Tobacco is one of the main agricultural products of Bangladesh and ranks fourth after jute, Sugarcane and tea. It is one of the important revenue earning items. But about 60% of the total population use tobacco in one or the other forms. The annual consumption of tobacco per person is about 1.80 pound<sup>4</sup>
