A Southern Woman's Story Phoebe Yates Pember, 2021-09 Phoebe Yates Levy Pember was a member of a prominent American Jewish family from Charleston South Carolina and a nurse and female administrator of Chimborazo Hospital at Richmond Virginia during the American Civil War. In another half hour vehicles of all kinds crowded in from a wheelbarrow to a stretcher and yet no orders had been sent me to prepare for the wounded. Few surgeons had remained in the hospital the proximity to the field tempting them to join the ambulance committee or ride to the scene of action and the officer of the day left in charge naturally objected to my receiving a large body of suffering men with no arrangements made for their comfort and but few in attendance I was preparing to leave for my home at the Secretary of the Navy where I returned every night when the pitiful sight of the wounded in ambulances furniture wagons carts carriages and every kind of vehicle that could be impressed detained me.     A Southern Woman's Story Phoebe Pember, 2017-06-25 Phoebe Yates Levy Pember 1823 1913 was a member of a prominent American Jewish family from Charleston South Carolina and a nurse and female administrator of Chimborazo Hospital at Richmond Virginia during the American Civil War. She assumed the responsibility informally at the age of 39 and eventually over 15 000 patients came under her direct care during the war. Pember remained at Chimborazo until the Confederate surrender in April 1865. She published her memoir soon after the war in March 1866 serialized in a Baltimore magazine called The Cosmopolite as Reminiscences of A Southern Hospital By Its Matron. The memoir would later be published in book form as A Southern Woman's Story: Life in Confederate Richmond in 1879. The memoir which details her daily life through anecdotes of the war years remains one of the best sources for understanding the experiences and ideas of upper class Southern Jewish women before and during the Civil War.     A Southern Woman's Story Phoebe Yates Pember, 1959     A Southern Woman's Story Phoebe Yates Pember, 2021-11-05 In Phoebe Yates Pember's book A Southern Woman's Story readers are given a unique and intimate glimpse into the life of a woman during the American Civil War. Masterful Women Kirsten E. Wood,2005-12-15 Many early nineteenth century slaveholders considered themselves masters not only over slaves but also over the institutions of marriage and family According to many historians the privilege of mastery was reserved for white males But as many as one in ten slaveholders sometimes more was a widow and as Kirsten E Wood demonstrates slaveholding widows between the American Revolution and the Civil War developed their own version of mastery Because their husbands wills and dower law often gave women authority over entire households widowhood expanded both their domestic mandate and their public profile They wielded direct power not only over slaves and children but also over white men particularly sons overseers and debtors After the Revolution southern white men frequently regarded powerful widows as direct threats to their manhood and thus to the social order By the antebellum decades however these women found support among male slaveholders who resisted the popular claim that all white men were by nature equal regardless of wealth Slaveholding widows enjoyed material legal and cultural resources to which most other southerners could only aspire The ways in which they did and did not translate those resources into social political and economic power shed new light on the evolution of slaveholding society
