

Cognition and learning

This area includes general learning difficulties (which may be moderate or severe, profound) and multiple learning difficulties (MLD) and specific learning difficulties (SpLD).

MLD is when a person has a severe learning disability and other disabilities that significantly affect their ability to communicate and be independent. Someone with MLD may have difficulties seeing, hearing, speaking and moving. They may have complex health and social care needs due to these or other conditions.

SpLDs include: dyslexia (difficulties with reading and spelling), dyscalculia (difficulties with number and calculation), and dyspraxia (or 'developmental coordination disorder' - difficulties with motor planning). People with one or more SpLDs have a 'spiky profile' of attainment, with areas of strength (sometimes very high) and areas of need.

Sensory and/or physical needs

This area includes sensory impairments, such as visual impairment (VI) and hearing impairment (HI), as well as physical conditions such as cerebral palsy. These children will usually access support from a specific local team, which may be a combination of education and health services.

These children do not necessarily have 'learning difficulties' in that their cognitive functioning may be average or above; some children do have associated learning difficulties.

Communication and interaction

This area includes speech, language and communication needs (SLCN) including Developmental Language Disorder (DLD), which could mean difficulties with speech production, the understanding of language, the expression of language or a combination of all three. It also includes difficulties with the social use of language.

Children with a diagnosis of Autistic Spectrum Condition, including Asperger's Syndrome Profile, can have needs in this area.

Children who find communication and interaction challenging may or may not also have learning difficulties.

Social, emotional and mental health

Challenging behaviours are displayed for many reasons, which may be indicative of underlying mental health difficulties (such as anxiety or depression) or emotional issues (such as attachment needs).

Some children have conditions such as ADHD (Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder) or ADD (Attention Deficit Disorder) which affect how they behave.

It is crucial to look for the underlying causes of any behaviour and/or emotional state, and aim to support these, rather than just dealing with the presenting behaviour.

For some children with SEMH difficulties, the nature of these difficulties will mean that they have learning difficulties, either temporarily or in the long term.
