The Virtual Campus M.F. Mobile Learning at a State College Virtual Campus Lucimara C. Mello, 2021 In addressing online instruction challenges of affordability access to technology and connectivity this study investigates students beliefs and uses of mobile learning at Southern State College Virtual Campus SSCVC during the COVID19 pandemic while examining the instructional design strategies used to maximize the potential of mobile learning First analyses of the learning management system LMS data described students demographics and how these students accessed online instruction at SSCVC Second based on the Theory of Planned Behavior TPB Criminal Justice CJ online students were surveyed on their perspectives of mobile learning before i.e. Fall 2019 and during the pandemic i.e. Fall 2020 In addition a focus group interview with SSCVC elearning professionals as well as analyses of six selected CJ online courses were conducted to investigate the instructional design strategies that can be applied to build learning environments that foster mobile learning Results revealed that 65% of CJ online students used the LMS mobile app and 35% used browsers to access CJ classes These rates were the same comparing LMS data from before and during the pandemic Survey respondents n=59 reported that the top reasons for using mobile devices for learning were their location schedule and type of assignment

Additionally Wilcoxon Signed Rank tests suggested that students were more likely to engage in mobile learning when thinking of their constraints during the COVID19 pandemic i e Fall 2020 compared to before the pandemic i e Fall 2019 Qualitative data from the focus group and the analyses of six CJ online classes resulted in a list of online course design best practices including the use of assignments and technology tools that are compatible with both hand held devices and desktops Implications of this study for higher education institutions and elearning professionals include the acknowledgement of the pervasiveness of mobile learning and the importance of flexible design strategies for online instruction that can be accessed and consumed by all learners and across platforms devices and learning spaces Campus Activities Programming ,2007 California Virtual Campus Online Survival Guide S.E. Van Dusen,1997 The virtual campus is a metaphor for the electronic teaching learning and research environment created by the convergence of several relatively new technologies including but not restricted to the Internet World Wide Web computer mediated communication video conferencing multi media groupware video on demand desktop publishing intelligent tutoring systems and virtual reality The focus of this monograph is of necessity limited to changes occurring in higher education institutions that are committed to reform via technology A survey of the literature finds reform characterized by changes in teaching learning research and scholarly activity organizational culture and governance and finance Section 2 takes up teaching on the virtual campus and how institutional variables influence adoption of information technologies according to their particular missions and goals Section 3 on classroom learning contrasts traditional and virtual classrooms and describes the interface capabilities of various technologies Section 4 explores recent reconceptualizations of scholarship as well as new computer based technologies that are beginning to influence both the methods and substance of research Section 5 depicts efforts to reform both the bureaucratic and academic spheres of higher education institutions by applying principles of Total Quality Management Section 6 delineates some of the important new responsibilities of governing boards including monitoring regulatory legislation establishing a telecommunications policy and shepherding resources for technology The final section draws conclusions from the literature and makes recommendations for institutional planning and research Specifically the seven conclusions are 1 a paradigm shift can occur only in institutions committed to comprehensive reform 2 attempts to change the classroom focus from the sage on the stage to collaborative
