The First Person:

Naturalism and the First-Person Perspective Lynne Rudder Baker, 2013-02-15 Science and its philosophical companion Naturalism represent reality in wholly nonpersonal terms How if at all can a nonpersonal scheme accommodate the first person perspective that we all enjoy In this volume Lynne Rudder Baker explores that question by considering both reductive and eliminative approaches to the first person perspective After finding both approaches wanting she mounts an original constructive argument to show that a non Cartesian first person perspective belongs in the basic inventory of what exists That is the world that contains us persons is irreducibly personal After arguing for the irreducibility and ineliminability of the first person perspective Baker develops a theory of this perspective The first person perspective has two stages rudimentary and robust Human infants and nonhuman animals with consciousness and intentionality have rudimentary first person perspectives In learning a language a person acquires a robust first person perspective the capacity to conceive of oneself as oneself in the first person By developing an account of personal identity Baker argues that her theory is coherent and she shows various ways in which first person perspectives contribute to reality
