Thomas goes out Gunilla Wolde,1983      Thomas Goes Out Gunilla Wolde,1971      The Eternity of the World in the Thought of Thomas Aquinas and his Contemporaries Wissink,2022-06-08 This study forms part of a research programme aiming to interpret and evaluate the theology of Thomas Aquinas and the later reception of his theology In particular it deals with the reception of Aquinas thinking about the eternity of the world by theologians at the end of the 13th and the beginning of the 14th century De Grijs defends the thesis that Aquinas main interest in De Aeternitate Mundi is not philosophical but theological while Aertsen opposes this thesis and tries to demonstrate Aquinas philosophical purposes by comparing his De Aeternitate Mundi with his De Potentia and by study of his concept of creation Van Veldhuijsen sketches the difference between Aquinas and Bonaventure in this respect M Hoenen concentrates on the importance of William de la Mare s Correctorium fratris Thomae and of the Correctoria Corruptorii for our understanding of the history of the reception of the views of Aquinas F Thijssen discusses the criticism of the Oxford theologian Henry of Harclay died 1317 of Aquinas views on two central issues that are involved in an eternal world the traversal of an infinity and the existence of unequal infinities Van Veldhuijsen finally investigates Aquinas reception by Richard of Middleton      Thomas goes out Gunilla Wolde,

Insane Euphoria Speaks Katherine Dickson,2007-04 Insane Euphoria Speaks Diary of a Late Pregnancy is one woman s account of her third pregnancy from May 1971 through March 1972 When she first suspects that she is pregnant she wonders what her husband s reaction might be Should she or should she not have a third child In her deepest self she feels that she would like the profound natural happiness of being pregnant once again At the same time she wonders if she and her husband have both the emotional and financial resources to provide for a third child The narrator tries to balance the anticipated euphoria of the experience against the very substantial demands of a third child This will be the last pregnancy because she will be thirty nine years old in two months The positive side is that she is emotionally and psychologically ready for the experience and expects that she can make it into something more wonderful than her first two pregnancies had been She served her motherhood apprenticeship with her first two children and the third time around she can appreciate her hard won expertise She realizes that she will be able to enjoy a mastery of the motherhood experience akin to the professional mastery she enjoyed before motherhood An added plus to the third pregnancy is that she will be able to keep a journal something she wanted to do with her first two pregnancies but was never sufficiently in control to do so Her decision to continue the pregnancy is supported by her husband s enormous happiness at the prospect of a third child The narrator records both the resources and the limitations of her current situation She wants the pregnancy to be a beautiful experience and contain all that her previous two pregnancies lacked She feels she knows what to expect from the experience and this makes a significant difference She likes the house where she lives and is grateful for the view of the hill and field across the street from her living room window This is her relaxing view her contact with nature and the eternal The limitations of her situation are the lack of any household or babysitting help and the resulting acute need for some private time to herself. Having been an independent professional woman before she had children she finds being a full time at home mother and an economic dependent a limiting and sometimes demeaning experience. There are fluctuations in her relationship with her husband and negotiations about power and money in their everyday life. The relationship is tugged one way by his wanting her to go back to work and the other way by her wanting him to expand his professional practice. The narrator tries to keep anything from marring the enjoyment of her third and final pregnancy. She wants to experience all the pleasure possible. She finds this a time of psychic integration where the discordant elements of her personality are integrated and present more and deeper meaning than she had previously known. The baby moves for the first time she witnesses her two year old learn to talk and her three year old start nursery school. His family her family and their friends form a chorus in the background. She experiences increasing dreaminess while she enjoys keeping a journal and at one point rereading some of her earlier journals. In the end it culminates in the birth of a beautiful healthy baby girl.
