early as the mid 17th century Protestant and Catholic Jesuit missionaries negotiated their way into the secluded empire of China These first missionaries were largely Portuguese and predominantly Roman Catholic During this age many European Empires were beginning to transition from colonial expansion via conversion and missionary work to a more commercial approach This thesis proposes to answer the following questions Why and how was French missionary work so important to international relations between France and China In what ways did this missionary work alter Chinese society Did the French missionaries pave the way for China s future as a republic and if so how What were the differences between France s Catholic missionaries and France s Protestant missionaries in China Additionally how might this missionary work compare to other notable examples such as Spain s missionary work in South and Central America It is hoped that this thesis will be able
