The Shame Experience:

The Shame Experience Susan Miller, 2013-07-04 Drawing on a series of in depth interviews illuminating the phenomenology of shame in the general public Miller systematically explores the various dimensions of the shame experience The complex relationships between shame and female sexual development shame and phallic inhibition and shame and orality are among the topics critically reexamined Reframe Your Shame Irene Rollins, 2022-08-02 Discover how facing your underlying pain will allow you to overcome it and move forward With practical insights and biblical teaching about what it takes to break the cycle of addiction and shame Reframe Your Shame will set you on the path to freedom Irene Rollins knows what it means to walk through shame especially as a leader She enjoyed a seemingly perfect life as a wife mom and leader of a megachurch while she hid a secret addiction to alcohol that almost destroyed everything With vulnerability and wisdom Irene offers strategies and biblical teaching to break free of the suffocating cycle of sin and shame Many people aren't even aware that they live in an addiction cycle unaware of how unmanageable their lives have become Their relationships feel distant difficult or dysfunctional but they often don't know why Reframe Your Shame provides awareness and resources to help readers recognize the warning signs of toxic shame and addiction accept truth and take responsibility for their own journey of emotional healing and growth find freedom from shame self defeating hurts hang ups and habits learn to communicate connect with others and resolve both internal and relational conflicts and discover practical tools to live with purpose free from the baggage of the past Perfect for those fighting a personal battle or for family members and counselors walking with them Reframe Your Shame sets them on a path to freedom Shame and Body Image Barbara McFarland, Tyeis Baker Baumann, 1990 My Experiences at Nan Shan and Port Arthur, with the Fifth East Siberian Rifles Nikolaï Aleksandrovich Tret'iakov, Nikolaï Aleksandrovich Tret'iakov, 1911 Nervous and Mental Disease Monograph Series Edward John Kempt, 1921 Shame in Context Susan Miller, 2013-05-13 In this enlightening and gracefully written study Susan Miller examines shame in a variety of clinical contexts en route to a richer understanding of shame dynamics Miller attends especially to the role of shame in creating and maintaining character pathology and devotes separate sections of the book to shame in the context of obsessive compulsive narcissistic and masochistic personality organizations Within each of these clinical contexts a chapter of theoretical discussion is followed by a chapter of engaging case examples Integral to Shame in Context is Miller's informed and thoughtful critique of current theories about shame including those of Broucek Morrison Schore Wurmser Nathanson and Kinston In reviewing the contributions of these and other writers she is most concerned with achieving a balanced comprehension of shame that incorporates the insights of different theoretical perspectives without embracing the selective emphases of any one investigator or school of thought Like Freud she appreciates the defensive utility of shame but she attends equally to the painful and at times pathogenic aspects of shame experiences In line with more recent shame literature she emphasizes the pathogenicity of early shaming but she is equally sensitive to the role of shame in sustaining character defenses And she goes beyond the purview of other shame researchers in examining the ways in which individuals unconsciously seek to maintain shame experiences when these experiences sustain their personality organizations Offering a critical evaluation and synthesis of contemporary shame theories and culminating in a balanced clinical understanding of shame in its various contexts Shame in Context takes its place as in the words of Frances Broucek the most sophisticated and definitive clinical study of shame to date

Contemporary Human Behavior Theory Susan P. Robbins,Pranab Chatterjee,Edward R. Canda,2006 This covers both the traditional and the most current and contemporary theories from a comparative theory perspective Intended to be a source for comparison purposes it is organized to include contemporary developments in traditional lifespan of the theory coverage of the research that supports it an analysis of the validity of that research and a discussion of updated contemporary issues It also includes new content on ecofeminism neurobiology neurotransmission and behavior feminist standpoint theory theories of bisexual and transgender identity development the role of shame in women s development ethnic cultural identity development and cultural competence theories of political economy and transpersonal theory

mentioned that shame is a taboo subject Ironically we are ashamed of our shame It seems to be much easier to say that I am angry sad nervous than to say I am ashamed Rather than finding it liberating there is an assumption that talking about shame is demeaning or is a sign of weakness Therefore until recently there has been a dearth of research understanding and knowledge about shame to the extent that shame and similar emotions such as guilt are used interchangeably in the literature Since shame appears to be present in a wide variety of psychological disorders and is associated with mental health problems such as depression social phobia and eating disorders it is necessary to extend our knowledge in this area and to become well equipped to deal with shame The current shame theorists suggest that shame is one of the so called self conscious emotions because it mainly involves an evaluation of the self Shame is believed to be an incapacitating emotion that is accompanied by the feeling of being small inferior and shrinking The self as a whole is devalued and considered to be inadequate incompetent and worthless Shame might also involve the feeling of being exposed condemned and ridiculed Unlike basic emotions shame does not seem to have distinctive universal facial expressions and is not experienced similarly in different cultures Emotions such as shame pride guilt embarrassment envy empathy and jealousy are associated with a sense of self and self awareness hence they belong to a family of self conscious emotions To experience shame individuals need an ability to form self representations internalize external values and compare and evaluate themselves Therefore shame is not experienced in species with lower cognitive abilities and understanding People tend to experience shame when they become aware of the difference between their actual and ideal self representation attribute a negative event to the self and evaluate the self negatively or see themselves as having a lower status In this part we look at each of these theories In shame there is a feeling of inadequacy unworthiness and inferiority Shame can occur when someone makes internal stable uncontrollable and global attributions for a negative incident or when they feel they have a lower status concerning others Women and people from underprivileged backgrounds minorities and working class people are more prone to experience shame
