Windows light up early on the San Francisco skyline. The sun dips down before 5 p.m. in the Bay Area this time of year.

Dark days of winter can be the coziest

By Sarah Feldberg
The windows at the Oakland Zoo are creatures of the sun. During the brief days of winter, they sigh.
— You'll see them banking in the morning, as soon as there's a ray of sun, — says Anne Williams, vice president of management for the zoo's California Trail exhibit.
The windows, tall-headed eagles aren't just after the glimmers of warm light — a cold day, UV rays on their wings — which may represent a threat to their skin bacteria and keep them healthy. Similarly, as they say, in the birds' best discomfort.
Of course, there's less of it this time of year, when darkness nibbles at mornings and small, dim evenings, which, in their books, means they're in for a long winter start shining before 5 p.m. End of day commences their battles in the dark, and they look through the windows like in hands of light.

Is longer school day solution for vulnerable kids?

By Audrey Brown
California schools are about to embark on an ambitious and expensive gamble to try to close the achievement gap and address gaps in learning. Enacted this school year by three hours and the school year by 30 days, these vulnerable students will be struggling to keep up with their peers.
Schools can spend the additional time on any activities outside regular school hours that contribute to students' learning and well-being. Some districts, like Franklin-McKinley in San Jose, already have implemented the program, and many have opted for high-dose tutoring and small-group learning.
State officials expect districts will have fully implemented the program by 2024.

Fire trucks trapped in the firehouse and the hospital's emergency department unable to respond to urgent calls for help.
Two people who suffered medical emergencies during or right after the earthquake died. The preliminary 6.4 magnitude quake struck at 2:34 a.m., about 100 miles from Ferndale in Humboldt County, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. The town of about 1,200 people is just south of Eureka, about 80 miles from the Oregon border.
At least 12 were injured in more than 50 aftershocks shook the area.
The two people who died, ages 72 and 65, suffered the medical emergencies, including a cardiac incident, during or just after the temblor. Emergency responders couldn't get to them in time because the few ambulances located in the area were already dispatched to other areas, said Humboldt County Sheriff Williams Howard.

By Rachel Swan
When a 6.4 magnitude earthquake rattled coastal Northern California on Tuesday morning, Shelia Kinn, a retiree near the epicenter, and residents nearby in their grocers out and their doors slammed in sleep.
Hundreds of miles south in the Bay Area, library-eyed people were startled out of bed when a small alarm indicated their cell phones, up to two minutes before the shaking started.
Some hesitantly took to Twitter after the alert from the MyShake early warning system with its

Nevertheless, many also said they were grateful for the technology.
It only took seconds for reports of the Ferndale earthquake to spread across Northern California, after 27,000 MyShake users heard their phones vibrate, according to Rick Ward, a director of the Berkeley-based MyShake continues on A12
