ABSTRACT

The main aim of this paper was to analyse South Africa's transition from one-party dominance to a multi-party coalition government, with specific reference to the 2024 general elections in South Africa. Through the use of secondary data collection, the paper critically analysed the nexus between social discontent and voting behaviour in South Africa's 2024 general elections. Using rational choice theory, the paper argued that voting behaviour in the 2024 elections was influenced by people's choice to vote for a political party that promised to improve their welfare by addressing existing socio-economic challenges. The study found that the African National Congress (ANC), which has been a single dominant party in national government for 30 years, has failed to address pressing challenges that cause social discontent such as poor service delivery, poverty, unemployment, inequality, corruption, and the energy crisis. As a result, the party fell below the threshold to govern on its own, leading to the formation of a multi-party coalition government with former opposition parties named the Government of National Unity (GNU). The paper concluded that parties that form multi-party coalition government should prioritise people's interests such as mitigating existing social discontents, because failure to do so shall influence voting behaviour in the upcoming election cycles, which might affect their electoral support as was the case with the ANC's decline of support post-2024 general elections. This study anticipates making a valuable contribution to the existing body of knowledge by offering practical insights into the nexus between social discontent and voting behaviour in South Africa's elections. In addition, the study provides recommendations on how the newly formed government of national unity can mitigate the existing social discount among electorates.

Political Marketing Zakari Bukari, Abu Bakar A Hamid, Hishamuddin MD SOM, 2020-09-25 Political marketing is part and parcel of political life. Politicians, government and council departments have incorporated marketing in their pursuit of political goals. They are aware when deciding on policies and service deliverances, understand people they serve and seek votes from them and thus create new segments to target and creation of the political brand to develop an attractive vision. The objectives of this study are to examine voters' behaviour, the role of loyalty, trust and voting intention in selecting political leaders in Ghana. Data gathered from 520 eligible voters who have voted at least two times. Structural Equation Modeling (Smart PLS) was employed to generate the findings. The outcome revealed that candidate personality, epistemic value, contingency situation and political issues have a positive and significant influence on voting intention. However, the social imagery had no effect on voting intention from the voters' perspectives. Voters' loyalty and trust moderates voting intention on the aggregate level. This finding suggested that political issues engagement with voter audience need to be revisited through civic education. Given the importance that democratic societies placed on citizens' participation in an electoral process, incorporating their views, opinions and feelings on trust and loyalty to a party on their voting intention will offer an empirical dimension to the evaluation of voters' behaviour and also help the leadership of the various political parties in Ghana in their quest to develop appropriate strategies with the so aim of winning election. As marketers do to win their customers against their competitors.

Proceedings of the 2nd International Conference on Democracy and Social Transformation (ICON-DEMOST 2023) Naili Ni'matul Illiyun, Endang Supriadi, Ririh Megah Safitri, Masrohatun Masrohatun, 2024-01-05 This is an open access book. Faculty of Social and Political Science, State Islamic University Walisongo Semarang has been playing significant roles in building global peace and justice by conducting scientific research and creating a space for academic dialogue and discussion. This goal is in line with our vision to be a Research Faculty based on the unity of sciences for humanity and civilization. As part of the efforts to create a space for academic dialogue at a global level, we organize an international conference which aims to develop scientific knowledge, build institutional capacity and strengthen international networking. The conference is also held to support State Islamic University Walisongo Semarang in achieving its vision to be an Islamic world class university. The conference raises the issue of democracy and social transformation to capture the social and political dynamics. The selection of this topic is based on the idea that technological development is becoming a crucial issue within modern society in which people tend to experience alienation within the rapid social and political transformation. Democracy as a political system that ensures transparency, citizen participation and human rights protection is now under threat. Having the fact that there is a growing tendency of using transactional politics to win political interests such as the use of money and identity in political processes, therefore political analysts consider this situation as the regression of democracy. Rapid social and cultural transformation as a consequence of advanced technology creates problems in modern society On one hand technology has made the life of people easier However on the other hand the sense of humanity s values and principles is declining This situation can be observed in the decrease in social solidarity and the rise of individualism Modernity that values productivity and economic growth has brought anegative impact on the life of human being and nature The exploitative character of industrialization has created an ecological crisis Advanced information technology has loosened social cohesivity and the rise of instrumental rationality has removed local genius or local wisdom from the life of society Since the ultimate goal of humanity is respecting the dignity of human beings hence bringing back humanity to the center of the development program is crucial especially in the current social and political dynamics In the political context humanity means respecting the basic rights of the citizen and putting them as a subject of political development and not perceiving citizens as only an instrument to win political power Based on the above background this conference is organized The overall goal of the conference is to mainstream humanity in the current social and political change The conference is also expected to be an arena for scholars and experts in social and political science as well as practitioners and policymakers to meet and exchange ideas and perspectives for a better future of our society
