At the request of the Department of Defense and the Environmental Protection Agency the National Research Council has reviewed the relevant scientific literature compiled by an expert panel and established Acute Exposure Guideline Levels (AELs) for several chemicals. AELs represent exposure levels below which adverse health effects are not likely to occur and are useful in responding to emergencies such as accidental or intentional chemical releases in community workplace transportation and military settings and for the remediation of contaminated sites. Three AELs are approved for each chemical representing exposure levels that result in 1) notable but reversible discomfort, 2) long lasting health effects, and 3) life threatening health impacts. Acute Exposure Guideline Levels for Selected Airborne Chemicals, Volume 13 includes AELs for boron trifluoride, bromoacetone, chloroacetone, hexafluoroacetone, perchloryl fluoride, piperidine, propargyl alcohol, trimethoxysilane, and tetramethoxysilane, and trimethylbenzenes. Professional Safety ,1996 Lees' Loss Prevention in the Process Industries Frank Lees, 2012-11-05 Safety in the process industries is critical for those who work with chemicals and hazardous substances or processes. The field of loss prevention is and continues to be of supreme importance to countless companies, municipalities, and governments around the world, and Lees is a detailed reference to defending against hazards. Recognized as the standard work for chemical and process engineering safety professionals, it provides the most complete collection of information on the theory, practice, design elements, equipment, regulations, and laws covering the field of process safety. An entire library of alternative books and cross-referencing systems would be needed to replace or improve upon it, but everything of importance to safety professionals, engineers, and managers can be found in this all-encompassing three-volume reference. Instead, the process safety encyclopedia, trusted worldwide for over 30 years, is now available in print and online to aid searchability and portability. Over 3,600 print pages cover the full scope of process safety and loss prevention, compiling theory, practice, standards, legislation, case studies, and lessons learned in one resource, as opposed to multiple sources.
