World Bank Anne C. M. Salda, 1995 Financing Education in Developing Countries George Psacharopoulos, Jee-Peng Tan, Emmanuel Jimenez, 1986-01-01 Education is an economically and socially productive investment Therefore the educational systems in developing countries must continue to improve in quality in efficiency and in equality of opportunity if they are to continue serving as important instruments for improving the national economy Yet budgetary austerity tightens the public purse strings ever increasing school age populations stretch these dwindling resources and other social and economic factors present compelling competition for the same funds The heavy subsidization of education implicit in traditional policy especially of higher education at the expense of primary schooling with its concomitant economic inefficiencies and inequities is no longer appropriate Supported by empirical evidence this book examines the potential effects of policy alternatives in several areas of education financing and management 1 The contribution of private financing and selective user charges especially in higher education and reallocation of public spending 2 Selective student loan and scholarship programs in higher education and 3 Decentralization and role of private and community schools Implementation of these policies may be difficult because of conflicts with traditional educational and political philosophies and established administrative institutions Included are statistical tables case studies instances of reform and a bibliography KWL

Financing Education : Investments and Returns ,2003 Knowledge and skill are seen to have an increasingly important role in improving the economic and social conditions of countries but investment in such human capital is unlikely to be successful unless programmes are designed to meet desired objectives To make sure that this happens countries need to pay attention to international comparisons To make sure comparative statistics were reliable 11 countries Argentina Brazil Chile China India Indonesia Jordan Malaysia the Philippines the Russian Federation and Thailand started the World Education Indicators programme in 1997 This is the third report of the programme and it is in three sections investing in human capital and returns public and private roles in education country profiles Financing Education in Sub-Saharan Africa UIS,UNESCO-IIEP,UNESCO Office Dakar and Regional Bureau for Education in Africa,2011-01-01 In the current economic climate how can African governments provide every child with a decent education This report provides the statistical evidence to evaluate the policy trade offs in responding to the rising demand for primary and secondary education in sub Saharan Africa The report presents the most comprehensive and timely data available on the financing of education in 45 sub Saharan African countries In addition historical data enable the authors to track trends since the World Education Forum in 2000 and examine the financial impact of the steadfast commitment of many African governments to provide universal primary education Over the past ten years real expenditure on education has risen by 6% annually across the region It is often assumed that the resources were used to widen enrollment Yet recent data show that many countries also made significant investments to improve their educational services The report also introduces new indicators on critical issues such as the qualifications and salaries of teachers the running costs of schools and the provision of textbooks The authors examine financing trends in private education as well as official development assistance which accounts for more than 50% of public education budgets in some countries In short this report provides the facts not assumptions to analyse policy options and optimise the use of limited financial resources P 4 of cover Education, Poverty and the World Bank Phillip W. Results-Based Financing in Education World Bank Group, 2017 Result based financing RBF captures the essence of how the World Bank Group WBG is implementing its education strategy Learning for All The strategy emphasizes learning rather than just schooling since that is what leads to economic growth development and poverty reduction Second the strategy calls for investing For all so as to ensure the equity dimension behind the Sustainable Development Goals SDGs and the Bank s Twin Goals of reducing poverty and boosting shared prosperity These goals can be achieved through strengthening education systems This paper largely focuses on how finance and RBF specifically can be used as a lever to pull education systems into coherence RBF encompasses all of the four transformations called for performance innovation inclusion and finance Specifically putting results first performance and embracing results based approaches to finance finance is at the heart of the WBG approach The approach also offers a new way of approaching problems innovation and incentivizing results allows for differentiating levels of rewards in order to favor traditionally disadvantaged groups such as rural girls or children living with disabilities inclusion From Manpower Planning to the Knowledge Era Joel Samoff, 2003 Globalisation of Education Policies Thomas Webster (D.
