L'écriture du bonheur dans le roman contemporain Ruth Amar, 2011-01-18 Through the ages the pursuit of Happiness has been at the heart of the needs and desires each individual would seek to fulfill while as a concept Happiness has always resonated strongly in poetic as well as philosophical sociological and psychological contexts But what about Happiness today in a world dominated by technology driven by productivity and dictated by efficiency Does Happiness still feature in contemporary fiction in any significant way Or has it perhaps gone underground adopting different guises Would we still call that duty of happiness that Pascal Bruckner saw as present at the second half of the twentieth century a relevant force today Or has it waned perceptibly The articles brought together in this volume seek to work out answers to these and similar questions creatively addressing the imminent risks but also eagerly following up the intriguing possibilities one encounters when interrogating Happiness in the contemporary novel Originally based on an international conference organized at the University of Haifa Israel in May 2010 the volume is structured around the axes we found useful as a basis for the various approaches towards Happiness in Europe and the historical and social events that influenced the writing of Happiness as they defined the 20th century and have impacted on the 21st the Holocaust the Soviet dystopia consumerism postmodernism everyday life the various as yet unarticulated new modes of life they have given rise to and so on A new writing of happiness then At the very least this volume targets the contemporary novel without wanting to solidify works instead taking into account the fluctuations Happiness has been subjected to and the diversity and especially the paradoxes it has created while we have been keen to preserve a precise reading of the texts and have felt compelled to respect and preserve the particular features that make the writings of the authors we focus on stand out. The philosophical as well as political, sociological and psychological happiness is difficult to measure for each of us. Is it not true that we all desire to be happy? Plato. Or in our current world dominated by technology, the search for productivity and efficiency is it happiness? Is it still relevant to the Roman and contemporary? Under what forms would his research be? The second half of the 20th century, as Pascal Bruckner continues, it is still relevant or on the contrary, is it weakened? The project of a questioning of happiness in the contemporary novel carried great risks but it offered in the meantime stimulating possibilities. At the end of the international colloquium organized by the University of Haifa in May 2010, the texts gathered in this book seek to explore the different ways of thinking about happiness in the novel since 1980 and present a large diversity of approaches, definitions, interrogations about the critique of happiness over three centuries. The collection is organized around axes that have served as the basis for different approaches to happiness in Europe and different historical and social events that have influenced the critique of happiness in the different periods of the 20th and 21st centuries such as the Holocaust, dystopia in Russia, postmodernism and consumerism, the daily different paradoxes of happiness, the new ways of life. New critique of happiness. At the very least, this volume seeks to be contemporary without freezing the texts, taking into account the fluctuations of the subject, its diversity, its paradoxes, especially while preserving the precision of the texts and respecting the particularity of the critique of the authors.
