Archaeological Method and Theory Linda Ellis,2003-12-16 This Encyclopedia brings together the most recent scientific information on a collection of subjects that are too often and inconveniently treated in separate publications It provides a survey of archaeological method and theory as well as the application of physical and biological sciences in archaeological research Every aspect of archaeological work is represented from the discovery process to the ultimate disposition of materials Thus the reader will find entries on subject matter covering disciplinary theory legislation affecting the work of archaeologists pre excavation surveying excavation methodology on site conservation techniques post excavation analysis The rapid evolution of analytical technology is often superficially treated or not covered at all in textbooks or other commonly available sources Here the latest refinements in techniques such as radiometric dating stable isotopic analysis and the PCR technique of DNA analysis are presented clearly and authoritatively The discussion of these techniques is amplified by including results of the work of professionals conducting interdisciplinary research and by covering the methodologi enhancements provided by the physical and natural sciences Cultural property legislation regardless of its country of origin has affected how archaeologists conduct their work This encyclopedia covers all major U S legislation developed for the protection of cultural property including the recent Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act and offers a substantial article on worldwide legislation concerning the reburial of human remains and its effects on the present and future practice of archaeology Without some sort of conservation program at the point of excavation valuable materials may be inadvertently contaminated or destroyed Many simple and low cost techniques to promote both sample integrity and long term preservation for major classes of materials are described in this volume Traditional treatments of method and theory usually focus on prehistoric periods and are limited in their geographic range This volume includes discussions based on various historical periods on different continents as reflected in entries such as Historical Archaeology Industrial Archaeology Medieval Archaeology and Classical Archaeology

Landscapes of Neolithic Ireland Gabriel Cooney,2012-12-06 Landscapes of Neolithic Ireland is the first volume to be devoted solely to the Irish Neolithic using an innovative landscape and anthropological perspective to provide significant new insights on the period Gabriel Cooney argues that the archaeological evidence demonstrates a much more complex picture than the current orthodoxy on Neolithic Europe with its assumption of mobile lifestyles suggests He integrates the study of landscape settlement agriculture material culture and burial practice to offer a rounded realistic picture of the complexities and the realities of Neolithic lives and societies in Ireland

In Search of Origins Garry Trompf,2005-01-01 Religion is an integral part of our life The answer to the question what is religion is subjective Since the word religion and its cognates are common coinage across the literate world most of us will have a fair appreciation of the term s connotations Considering students and scholars alike are lacking an introductory textbook on the origins of religion in modern Western theory and archaeological practice this work is designed to fill the lacuna Historians of ideas and social science are often not clear as to how any given theory of religion might pertain to the known archaeological record while exponents of prehistoric religion have worked with surprisingly narrow definitions of religious life Many will locate the kernel of the matter in practice or in an active spirituality Today the pressures of the global village have forced many of us to take off our blinkers and do some cross cultural homework Religious Studies has emerged as an academic discipline or intellectual pursuit with one of its functions being to facilitate mutual understanding between traditions and to ensure that the varieties of religious belief and experience are fairly appraised The series of which this book is a part will be historically rather than theologically oriented This book will cover such a vast area for investigation and it is designed to help students find their own way through the forest pick the trees which interest them and learn how to scrutinise them in depth Religious Studies is a multi disciplinary activity and one is encouraged to turn over as many stones as possible to look at religions from as many different angles as possible the psychological anthropological sociological geographical ecological political economic and the like with some awareness of current theological debates as well This book gives scope to the comparative method and all the great religions are treated side by side with points of comparison and contrast drawn This book begin with the large question of the origins and prehistory of religion including the bearing anthropological study has on this question before giving space to the larger traditions themselves The comparative method is applied not only between such enormous aggregates of phenomena as let us say Buddhism and Islam but between these and small scale tribal traditions as well The book highlights that some religions will be difficult to separate from cultures because they amount to a total way of life An attempt is made to try to interpret religion both as culture and as a distinctive set of forces in interaction with culture or perhaps even against prevailing cultural forms This book has been designed to help students find for themselves possible answers to existential or theological questions but only as a side effect to historical and phenomenological study and as the author says provide no such answers on a platter

Bronze Age boat discovered in Dover in 1992 was one of the most important British archaeological finds of the later twentieth century The complex perfectly preserved sewn plank boat dating from the second millennium BC was not only a remarkable find in its own right but it also alluded to a highly sophisticated society that made and used the boat more than three and a half millennia ago The authors build a picture of what life was like at the time that the Dover boat set sail from its marine environment and seaworthiness boat building techniques and materials to the possible social and religious perceptions of boats and sea voyages more generally They explore the implications of the discovery for Bronze Age society water transport and cultural contact in a European context from the shores of Britain through northern and central Europe to the eastern Mediterranean and beyond
