Trophy Hunting Geoffrey Beattie, 2019-10-08 This book explores the psychology of trophy hunting from a critical perspective and considers the reasons why some people engage in the controversial activity of killing often endangered animals for sport Recent highly charged debate reaching a peak with the killing of Cecil the lion in 2015 has brought trophy hunting under unprecedented public scrutiny and yet the psychology of trophy hunting crucially remains under explored Considering all related issues from the evolutionary perspective and inclusive fitness to personality and individual factors like narcissism empathy and the Duchenne smiles of hunters posing with their prey Professor Beattie makes connections between a variety of indicators of prestige and dominance showing how trophy hunting is inherently linked to a desire for status He argues that we need to identify analyse and deconstruct the factors that hold the behaviour of trophy hunting in place if we are to understand why it continues and indeed why it flourishes in an age of collapsing ecosystems and dwindling species populations The first book of its kind to examine current research critically to determine whether there really is an evolutionary argument for trophy hunting and what range of motivations and personality traits may be linked to this activity This is essential reading for students and academics in psychology geography business environmental studies animal welfare as well as policy makers and charities in these and related areas It is of major relevance for anyone who cares about the future of our planet and the species that inhabit it
