

The American Declaration of Independence

IN CONGRESS JULY 4, 1776
THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION
OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

WHEN in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, solemnly publish and declare, that these United States are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connections between them and that Kingdom are totally dissolved; and that as to the future, their political course should be directed to peace, commerce, and amity with all other States, as well as to the preservation of their liberty and independence.

To the support of this Declaration, with a firm confidence we appeal to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions.

In witness whereof, the Representatives aforesaid have hereunto set their hands and seals, the day and date above written.

Done in the City and County of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, the fourth day of July, in the second year of the Independence of the United States of America.

Attest: My hand and seal, this fourth day of July, in the second year of the Independence of the United States of America.

John Adams, President of the Continental Congress.

Thomas Jefferson, Secretary of the Continental Congress.
