Working In Urban Schools:

Working in Urban Schools Tom Corcoran, Lisa J. Walker, J. Lynne White, 1988 This document on the working conditions of urban teachers reports data from a survey of 31 elementary middle and secondary schools in five urban school districts More than 400 interviews were conducted with teachers school administrators central office personnel district officials board members and union officials The observations interviews and analyses confirm that in most of these schools the working conditions of teachers are bleak and would not be tolerated in other professions Among the findings are the following 1 physical conditions are sub standard because of a lack of maintenance repair and space 2 safety is not a serious problem to teachers except in very depressed neighborhoods 3 teachers do not have even the basic resources needed let alone access to new technologies 4 teachers consider hiring more personnel to address the personal problems of students a higher priority than hiring more teachers to reduce class size 5 teachers generally understand the cultural gulf between them and their students but are unable to deal with what they consider aberrant student behavior 6 teachers perceive that they are losing control over what they teach primarily because of district wide testing policies although they are in control of how they teach and 7 teachers have little confidence in supervision staff development or central office leadership Characteristics of good working conditions are identified Tables illustrate the data Appendices compare these findings with those of other studies provide a list of about 100 references describe the methodology and compare school effects BJV

Teachers and Academic Partners in Urban Schools Lori Beckett, 2016-03-02 Showing how critical thinking and local democracy can be a spur to very real educational development within schools that are facing severe challenges this book provides us with one very valuable contemporary resource of hope Ian Menter Professor of Teacher Education University of Oxford UK Teachers and Academic Partners in Urban Schools identifies and addresses a major problem for practitioners teachers student teachers and teacher educators working in urban schools burdened by highly restrictive teaching methods and pressures to meet unrealistic benchmarks set by government In this book Lori Beckett investigates how to negotiate these tensions and challenges and offers an account of how to elevate practitioners professional voice on quality teaching along more democratic lines The book addresses key issues for teachers in urban schools such as fractures in teachers professional communities impacts of imposed marketizing policies and forced performative practices on schools the complexities of teaching and teachers concerns about practice as well as teaching practitioners perception of educational schools policy Both academic and teacher partners contribute to the work showcasing the ways they have engaged with each other in joint work and with local government Through this the book supports a professional and politicized dialogue about teaching and teacher education offering a meaningful account of how to fashion a form of educative schooling for students and families with complex needs Written by a dynamic and experienced author this book brings Beckett s experience to bear on a controversial and complex area addressing the general trend towards increased regulatory policy in education It is an essential read for anyone interested in a rich analysis of how practitioners can work to reassert their professional voice and regain control of schools and teacher education and will also appeal to those interested in the larger project of restoring school democracy Learning to Teach in Urban Schools
