Introducing the World Council of Churches

"... that they may all be one. As you, Father, are in me and I am in you, may they also be in us, so that the world may believe that you have sent me."

John 17: 21 (NIV)

World Council Churches 2002:

World Council of Churches World Council of Churches,2002 World Council of Churches Yearbook 2003 World Council of Churches,2003 Christianity and Ecological Theology E. M. Conradie,2006-10-01 There has been a proliferation of publications in the field of Christian ecological theology over the last three decades or so These include a number of recent edited volumes each covering a range of topics and consolidating many of the emerging insights in ecological theology The call for Christian churches to respond to the environmental crisis has been reiterated numerous times in this vast corpus of literature also in South Africa Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 ,1998 A Visible Unity Josiah Baker,2024-09-16 A Visible Unity is a study in systematic theology on the practices of the ecumenical movement demonstrating how the sharing of practices between churches reconciles their ecclesiological differences Josiah Baker makes his argument by studying the career and writings of Pentecostal ecumenist Cecil Robeck Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 ,2000 Tradition, Lotu and Militarism in Fiji Winston Halapua,2003 Theological Studies William James McGarry,John Courtney Murray,2004 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,2005 Joint Working Group Between the Roman Catholic Church and the World Council of Churches Joint Working Group of the Roman Catholic Church and the World Council of Churches,World Council of Churches,2005 This overview of World Council of Churches Roman Catholic Church relations between 1999 and 2005 outlines discussion and collaboration in areas such as inter religious dialogue ecumenical formation the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity interchurch marriage violence refugees and migration and diakonia and development It includes three study documents ecclesiological and ecumenical implications of a common baptism the nature and purpose of ecumenical dialogue and Roman Catholic participation in national and regional councils of churches Religion Index One ,2006 International Congress Calendar ,2001 Recall ,2002 Anti-Zionism in the "electronic Church" of Palestinian Christianity Gershon Nerel,2006 Globalization and the Re-shaping of Christianity in the Pacific Islands Manfred Ernst,2006 In recent years religion has received a good deal of attention in the discourse on globalization Christianity in its Pentecostal charismatic evangelical and fundamentalist forms seems to have thrived in the globalizing climate This is the most systematic account available of contemporary developments of Christianity in the Pacific Islands Back cover Cultural Reflections and the Role of Advertising in the Socio-economic and National Development of Nigeria Emmanuel C. Alozie,2005 This study focuses on the role of advertising in the process of social mobilization and modernization in Nigeria by examining the cultural reflections the nature and characteristics of the messages and the values and symbols conveyed in Nigerian mass media advertisements In this remarkable study Emmanuel C Alozie has attempted to explore the role of advertising in the national and economic development of Nigeria Examining this role through a combination of quantitative content analysis and critical cultural methods he has pursued a number of basic research questions. For example, one question asks what proportion of the advertisements in Nigerian mass media is directed to business entities as opposed to ordinary consumers. The answer he provides presents an interesting perspective on advertising's role. His research also found that most ads were product related and less than a third of the ads were related to service, one indication of the relative underdevelopment of the economy. Ads also promoted largely nonessential products and services to the tune of 65 per cent. In a developing country like Nigeria, the multitiered government agencies would provide a major share of the media advertising. In reality, only a tiny proportion, about 5 per cent, actually came from government sources; the rest of the advertising was provided by the national and multinational corporations. Alozie also found that Nigerian sponsors tend to promote goods of foreign origin over those of Nigerian origin. Overall, he found that less than half the products and services advertised (42 per cent) were of Nigerian origin, with much of the product nonessential in nature. Advertising messages with embedded appeals have the potential of manipulating consumers and promoting unproductive consumption habits among consumers in a situation of scarcity. Therefore, the appeals that are used in the advertising content become an important issue in a developing nation like Nigeria. Alozie did not find extensive use of the image, youth, and sex appeals in the ads so prevalent in the West, even though some of these appeals were found to have crept into the content. The primary selling point in addition was on savings, family, and safety for products, regardless of whether the ads featured high involvement or low involvement products and services. For decades, policy makers in the developing world have debated the need for using mass media for human resource moralization by emphasizing developmental themes. To what extent Nigerian ads contain developmental themes is a question Alozie explores. He finds that some ads do contain developmental themes such as savings, self-development, modernization, investment, hard work, competition, etc. These themes, however, appear rather infrequently. Financial institutions emphasize developmental themes, while manufacturing enterprises do not. The author underscores the need for the government to encourage private and public corporations to include developmental themes in their advertising messages to promote individual as well as communal or collective interests. From his messages, the author draws some broad conclusions that provide significant insight into Nigeria's prevailing advertising scene. For example, he concludes that the degree of information on products and services available in the country is inadequate because of low-level advertising. Even though developmental themes are employed in advertising messages, the scarcity of their use is not likely to promote national development. Broadcast advertisements are more democratic than those in the print media, primarily because they promote products and services more affordable to the average consumer. In general, consumer products advertised in Nigeria are frequently of foreign origin and therefore they are targeted to the elite who can afford the expensive nonessential products. The author recognizes the value and need for advertising that can disseminate not only beneficial information about products and services but can also serve as an effective tool in government's hands to promote information on significant social and developmental issues and policies that will affect the public scholars and researchers have contributed to the sizeable existing literature on development few have examined advertising as a meaningful means of communication for developmental messages and values Through his study Alozie has attempted to fill this void Students and scholars with an interest in the media of developing nations will find the articulation of the various theories concerning socio economic development quite stimulating But more importantly by answering a range of significant questions about the nature and types of advertising messages published or aired in the Nigerian mass media discussing what themes and values they contain and how relevant they are or influence the developmental goals of the nation the author offers a study that is useful insightful and rewarding
