Writing French Algeria

Jonathan Lewis

Writing French Algeria:

Writing French Algeria Peter Dunwoodie, 1998-11-26 Writing French Algeria is a groundbreaking study of the European literary discourse on French Algeria between the conquest of 1830 and the outbreak of the Algerian War in 1954. For the first time in English this intertextual reading reveals the debate conducted within Algeria and between colony and metropole that aimed to forge an independent cultural identity for the European settlers. Through astute discussions of various texts Peter Dunwoodie maps the representation of Algeria both in the dominant nineteenth century discourse of Orientalism via the literature of writers such as Gautier or Fromentin and in the colonial writing of Louis Bertrand Robert Randau and the Algerianists who played a critical role in the construction of the new Algeria. Dunwoodie shows how this ultimate construction relied on an extremely selective process which marginalized the indigenous people of the Maghreb in order to rediscover the country's Latin roots. The book also focuses on the dialogism operative in the works of colonial Algerian writers like Gabriel Audisio, Albert Camus, and Emmanuel Roblès, interrogating the way in which their voices countered the closure of those earlier strategies and yet still articulated the unresolvable dilemma of an inherently unstable and impermanent minority whose identity remained grounded in otherness. Sex, Law, and Sovereignty in French Algeria, 1830-1930

Judith Surkis, 2019-12-15 This is a masterful study of the ways in which sex and law were inextricably intertwined in the elaboration of French rule in Algeria. Its great virtue is to demonstrate in careful detail with an impressive range of material from court records to novels exactly how the conquest of Algeria repeatedly challenged the very ideals of the secular universalism in whose name colonization was carried out. Joan Wallach Scott, author of Sex and Secularism. During more than a century of colonial rule over Algeria the French state shaped and reshaped the meaning and practice of Muslim law by regulating it and circumscribing it to the domain of family law while applying the French Civil Code to appropriate the property of Algerians. In Sex, Law, and Sovereignty in French Algeria, 1830-1930 Judith Surkis traces how colonial authorities constructed Muslim legal difference and used it to deny Algerian Muslims full citizenship. In disconnecting Muslim law from property rights French officials increasingly attached it to the bodies, beliefs, and personhood. Surkis argues that powerful affective attachments to the intimate life of the family and fantasies about Algerian women and the sexual prerogatives of Muslim men supposedly codified in the practices of polygamy and child marriage shaped French theories and regulatory practices of Muslim law in fundamental and lasting ways. Women's legal status in particular came to represent the dense relationship between sex and sovereignty in the colony. This book also highlights the ways in which Algerians interacted with and responded to colonial law. Ultimately this sweeping legal genealogy of French Algeria elucidates how the Muslim question in France became and remains a question of sex.

Transnational Spaces and Identities in the Francophone World Hafid Gafaiti, 2009-07-01 The dissolution of the French Empire and the ensuing rush of immigration have led to the formation of diasporas and immigrant cultures that have transformed French society and the immigrants themselves.

Transnational Spaces and Identities in the Francophone World examines the impact of this postcolonial immigration on identity in France and in the Francophone world which has encompassed parts of Africa the Middle East Southeast Asia and the Americas Immigrants bear cultural traditions within themselves transform host communities and are in turn transformed These migrations necessarily complicate ideals of national literature culture and history forcing a reexamination and a rearticulation of these ideals Exploring a variety of texts informed by these transnational conceptions of identity and space the contributors to this volume reveal the vitality of Francophone studies within a broad range of disciplines periods and settings They remind us that the idea and reality of Francophonie is not a late twentieth century phenomenon but something that grows out of long term interactions between colonizer and colonized and between peoples of different nationalities ethnicities and religions Truly interdisciplinary this collection engages conceptions of identity with respect to their physical geographic ethnic and imagined realities

The French empire between the wars Martin Thomas,2017-03-01 By considering the distinctiveness of the inter war years as a discrete period of colonial change this book addresses several larger issues such as tracing the origins of decolonization in the rise of colonial nationalism and a re assessment of the impact of inter war colonial rebellions in Africa Syria and Indochina The book also connects French theories of colonial governance to the lived experience of colonial rule in a period scarred by war and economic dislocation
