Writing For The Medium Television In Transition:

Writing for the Medium, 1994      The Intimate Screen Jason Jacobs, 2000 This book explores the formative period of British television drama concentrating on the years 1936-55. It examines the continuities and changes of early television drama and the impact this had upon the subsequent golden age. In particular it questions the caricature of early television drama as photographed stage plays and argues that early television pioneers in fact produced a diverse range of innovative drama productions using a wide range of techniques. It also explores the often competing definitions about the form and aesthetics of early television drama both inside and outside the BBC. Given the absence of an audio visual record of early television drama the book uses written archive material in order to reconstruct how early television drama looked and how it was considered by producers and critics whilst also offering a critical examination of surviving dramas such as Rudolph Cartier's Nineteen Eighty Four.

Television Series as Literature Reto Winckler, Víctor Huertas-Martín, 2022-01-19 This book explores how television series can be understood as a form of literature bridging the gap between literary and television studies. It goes beyond existing adaptation studies and narratological approaches to television series in both its scope and depth. The respective chapters address literary works, themes, tropes, techniques, values, genres and movements in relation to a broad variety of television series while drawing on the theoretical work of a host of scholars from Simone de Beauvoir and Yuri Lotman to Ted Nannicelli and Jason Mittell and on critical approaches ranging from narratology and semiotics to empirical sociology and phenomenology. The book fosters new ways of understanding television series and literature and lays the groundwork for future scholarship in a number of fields. By questioning the alleged divide between television series and works of literature it contributes not only to a better understanding of television series and literary texts themselves but also to the development of interdisciplinary scholarship in the humanities.

Knots Landing Nick Salvato, 2015-05-01 Examines Knots Landing in its industrial and political contexts and from fresh aesthetic and theoretical perspectives. Airing on CBS for fourteen seasons 1979-93 Knots Landing was a spinoff of the popular drama Dallas but ultimately ran longer and took a very different tone on domestic social and economic issues than its predecessor. In the first full length scholarly study of Knots Landing Nick Salvato situates the series in its economic and industrial contexts, addresses its surprisingly progressive relationship to the American politics of its period, offers close formal interpretations of noteworthy episodes and unpacks the pleasures of the program's sensuous surfaces. While it has been largely overlooked in studies of 1980s television Knots Landing nonetheless beat more masculine fare like Hill Street Blues and L.A. Law in the ratings, introduced a novel focus on middle class lives in melodrama and launched or revived the careers of its major stars. In this study Salvato investigates the series' place in widespread serialization of American primetime television in the early 1980s and the end of network dominance in the early 1990s along with its unique relationship to Reaganism and glamour on the one hand and everydayness and suburbanization on the other. Salvato also looks at the series in relation to key concepts such as memory.

Transfigurations Asbjørn Grønstad,2008 In many senses viewers have cut their teeth on the violence in American cinema from Anthony Perkins slashing Janet Leigh in the most infamous of shower scenes to the 1970s masterpieces of Martin Scorsese Sam Peckinpah and Francis Ford Coppola to our present day undertakings in imagining global annihilations through terrorism war and alien grudges Transfigurations brings our cultural obsession with film violence into a renewed dialogue with contemporary theory Grnstad argues that the use of violence in Hollywood films should be understood semiotically rather than viewed realistically Tranfigurations thus alters both our methodology of reading violence in films and the meanings we assign to them depicting violence not as a self contained incident but as a convoluted network of our own cultural ideologies and beliefs

Beautiful TV Greg M. Smith,2007-09 During its five year run from 1997 to 2002 the popular TV show Ally McBeal engaged viewers in debates over what it means to be a woman or a man in the modern workplace how romance factors into the therapeutic understanding of relationships what value eccentricity has and how much oddity society should tolerate and what utility fantasy has in the pragmatic world In addition to these social concerns however Ally McBeal stood out for being well constructed narratively complex and stylistically rich in short beautiful TV Starting from the premise that much of television today is drop dead gorgeous and that

TV should be studied for its formal qualities as well as its social impact Greg M Smith analyzes Ally McBeal in terms of its aesthetic principles and narrative construction He explores how Ally s innovative use of music special effects fantasy sequences voiceovers and flashbacks structures a distinctive fictional universe while it also opens up new possibilities for televisual expression Smith also discusses the complex narrative strategies that Ally s creator David E Kelley used to develop a long running storyline and shows how these serial narrative practices can help us understand a wide range of prime time TV serials By taking seriously the art and argument of Ally McBeal Beautiful TV conclusively demonstrates that aesthetic and narrative analysis is an indispensable key for unlocking the richness of contemporary television
