Handbook of Assessment in Mindfulness Research Oleg N. Medvedev, Christian U. Krägeloh, Richard J.

Siegert, Nirbhay N. Singh, 2025-08-03 This handbook provides comprehensive coverage of assessment instruments used in mindfulness research. It discusses traditional and modern approaches used to develop psychometric measures and to establish their reliability and validity such as classical test theory, item response theory, and Rasch model, generalizability theory, facet benchmarking, and network analysis. The handbook provides information on conceptual foundations, development, and psychometric properties of assessment instruments used to measure mindfulness in children, adolescents, and adults. In addition, it provides similar information on scales used in specific contexts and for various purposes. It reviews behavioral, cognitive, and psychophysiological assessment measures of mindfulness. The handbook examines a broad range of psychological, physical health, and mental health and related measures that are used in mindfulness research. This reference work enables researchers to choose appropriate measurement tools for a broad range of mindfulness research. Key areas of coverage include: Nature and theoretical foundations of assessment; Origins and definitions of mindfulness; Mindfulness scales for children and adolescents; Mindfulness scales for adults; Mindfulness scales for specific contexts and purposes; Mindfulness and Buddhist related scales; Behavioral assessments of mindfulness; Cognitive and psychophysiological assessments of mindfulness. The Handbook of Assessment in Mindfulness Research is an essential reference for researchers, professors, and graduate students, as well as clinicians, therapists, and other mental health practitioners in clinical psychology and affiliated medical and mental health disciplines, including complementary and alternative medicine, social work, occupational, and rehabilitation therapy.

Semiparametric and Nonparametric Econometrics Aman Ullah, 2012-12-06 Over the last three decades, much research in empirical and theoretical economics has been carried on under various assumptions. For example, a parametric functional form of the regression model, the heteroskedasticity, and the autocorrelation is always assumed usually linear. Also, the errors are assumed to follow certain parametric distributions, often normal. A disadvantage of parametric econometrics based on these assumptions is that it may not be robust to the slight data inconsistency with the particular parametric specification. Indeed, any misspecification in the functional form may lead to erroneous conclusions. In view of these problems, recently there has been significant interest in the semiparametric, nonparametric approaches to econometrics. The semiparametric approach considers econometric models where one component has a parametric and the other which is unknown, a nonparametric specification. Manski (1984) and Horowitz and Neumann (1987) among others. The purely nonparametric approach, on the other hand, does not specify any component of the model a priori. The main ingredient of this approach is the data-based estimation of the unknown joint density due to Rosenblatt (1956). Since then, especially in the last decade, a vast amount of literature has appeared on nonparametric estimation in statistics journals. However, this literature is mostly highly technical and this may partly be the reason why very little is known about it in econometrics although see Bierens 1987 and Ullah 1988
