Time Elsewhere:

Augustine and Time John Doody, Sean Hannan, Kim Paffenroth, 2021-05-25 This collection examines the topic of time in the life and works of Augustine of Hippo Adopting a global perspective on time as a philosophical and theological problem the volume includes reflections on the meaning of history the mortality of human bodies and the relationship between temporal experience and linguistic expression As Augustine himself once observed time is both familiar and surprisingly strange Everyone's days are structured by temporal rhythms and routines from watching the clock to whiling away the hours at work Few of us however take the time to sit down and figure out whether time is real or not or how it is we are able to hold our past present and future thoughts together in a straight line so that we can recite a prayer or sing a song Divided into five sections the essays collected here highlight the ongoing relevance of Augustine's work even in settings quite distinct from his own era and context The first three sections organized around the themes of interpretation language and gendered embodiment engage directly with Augustine's own writings from the Confessions to the City of God and beyond The final two sections meanwhile explore the afterlife of the Augustinian approach in conversation with medieval Islamic and Christian thinkers like Avicenna and Aquinas as well as a broad range of Buddhist figures like Dharmakirti and Vasubandhu What binds all of these diverse chapters together is the underlying sense that regardless of the century or the tradition in which we find ourselves there is something about the puzzle of temporality that refuses to go away Time as Augustine knew demands our attention This was true for him in late ancient North Africa It was also true for Buddhist thinkers in South and East Asia And it remains just as true for humankind in the twenty first century as people around the globe continue to grapple with the reality of time and the challenges of living in a world that always seems to be speeding up rather than slowing down

The Academic Profession Martin J. Finkelstein, Philip G. Altbach, 2014-02-04 The purpose of this series is to bring together the main currents in today's higher education and examine such crucial issues as the changing nature of education in the U S the considerable adjustment demanded of institutions administrators the faculty the role of Catholic education the remarkable growth of higher education in Latin America contemporary educational concerns in Europe and more Among the many specific questions examined in individual articles re Is it true that women are subtly changing the academic profession How is power concentrated in academic organizations How successful are Latin America's private universities What is the correlation between higher education and employment in Spain Is minority graduate education in the U S producing the desired results

Prosecution of Politicide in Ethiopia Marshet Tadesse Tessema, 2018-09-26 This book investigates the road map or the transitional justice mechanisms that the Ethiopian government chose to confront the gross human rights violations perpetrated under the 17 years rule of the Derg the dictatorial regime that controlled state power from 1974 to 1991. Furthermore, the author extensively examines the prosecution of political violence or genocide against political groups in Ethiopia. Dealing with the violent conflict, massacres, repressions, and other mass atrocities of the past is necessary not for its own sake but to clear the way for a new beginning. In other words, ignoring gross human rights violations and attempting to close the chapter on an oppressive dictatorial past by choosing to let bygones be bygones is no longer a viable option when starting on the road to a democratic future. For unaddressed atrocities and a sense of injustice would not only continue to haunt a nation but could also ignite similar conflicts in the future. So the question is what choices are available to the newly installed government when confronting the evils of the past. There are a wide array of transitional mechanisms to choose from but there is no one size fits all mechanism. Of all the transitional justice mechanisms, namely truth commissions, lustration, amnesty, prosecution, and reparation, the Ethiopian government chose prosecution as the main means for dealing with the horrendous crimes committed by the Derg regime. One of the formidable challenges for transitioning states in dealing with the crimes of former regimes is an inadequate legal framework by which to criminalize and punish egregious human rights violations. With the aim of examining whether or not Ethiopia has confronted this challenge, the book assesses Ethiopia's legal framework regarding both crimes under international law and individual criminal responsibility. This book will be of great relevance to academics and practitioners in the areas of genocide studies, international criminal law, and transitional justice. Students in the fields of international criminal law, transitional justice, and human rights will also find relevant information on the national prosecution of political violence in particular and the question of confronting the past in general.

Marshet Tadesse Tessema is Assistant Professor of the Law School, College of Law and Governance at Jimma University in Ethiopia and Postdoctoral Fellow of the South African German Centre, University of the Western Cape in South Africa.
