The Human Museum:

Contesting Human Remains in Museum Collections Tiffany Jenkins, 2010-12-14 Since the late 1970s human remains in museum collections have been subject to claims and controversies such as demands for repatriation by indigenous groups who suffered under colonization These requests have been strongly contested by scientists who research the material and consider it unique evidence This book charts the influences at play on the contestation over human remains and examines the construction of this problem from a cultural perspective It shows that claims on dead bodies are not confined to once colonized groups A group of British Pagans Honouring the Ancient Dead formed to make claims on skeletons from the British Isles and ancient human remains bog bodies and Egyptian mummies which have not been requested by any group have become the focus of campaigns initiated by members of the profession at times removed from display in the name of respect By drawing on empirical research including extensive interviews with the claims making groups ethnographic work document media and policy analysis Contesting Human Remains in Museum Collections demonstrates that strong internal influences do in fact exist The only book to examine the construction of contestation over human remains from a sociological perspective it advances an emerging area of academic research setting the terms of debate synthesizing disparate ideas and making sense of a broader cultural focus on dead bodies in the contemporary period Human Remains & Museum

Practice Unesco. General Conference, 2006 Human Remains and Museum Practice reflects the discussions held at the Museum of London as part of an international symposium on the political and ethical dimensions of the collection and display of human remains in museums It explores fundamental issues of collecting and displaying human remains including ethics interpretation and repatriation as they apply in different parts of the world The first section looks at the overriding issues whilst the second part describes the practices in different parts of the world The Museum, 1925 Museum publications Jan 1929 v 2 p 28 32 List of Books in the National Art Library, South Kensington Museum, on Anatomy (human and Comparative) ... South Kensington Museum, 1886 Proceedings of the United States National Museum United States National Museum, 1912 The Human Interest Library: Old world travelogues, 1924 British Museum Catalogue of printed Books, 1892 Transactions of the Free Museum of Science and Art (University Museum), 1905
