Lessons of Ulster T. E. Utley, 1973 Lessons of Ulster Thomas Edwin Utley, 1975 Ulster's Men Jane G.V. McGaughey, 2012-03-09 From violence in the trenches to the struggle for independence and the eventual partition of the country Ireland's cultural history is indelibly marked by the shadow of the Great War As the war raged on the nine county province of Ulster refashioned in 1921 as the six counties of Northern Ireland was flooded with images of masculine military heroism Soldiers veterans and paramilitaries became the most visible and potent incarnation of manhood on the streets of Belfast and Derry In Ulster's Men Jane McGaughey provides an historical glimpse into the unionist ideals of manliness in Northern Ireland delving into the power dynamics of political propaganda military service fraternal societies and paramilitary violence Drawing upon depictions of men found in war diaries police reports government documents and the popular press McGaughey presents unionist masculinities as far more than the monolithic stereotype of dour austerity and misplaced loyalty An exploration of the history of gender representation through the mirror of Northern Ireland's tortuous past Ulster's Men weaves together images of Edwardian heroism imperial patriotism the fellowship of men in uniform and the chaotic hostilities of war Lessons, handbook for teachers Walter John Barton, William Louis Bunting, 1923 Handbook of the Ulster Question North eastern boundary bureau, 1923 The Ulster Bulletin Ulster Association for Peace with Honour, 1924

Popular Opposition to Irish Home Rule in Edwardian Britain Daniel Jackson, 2009-04-01 This book is a salutary reminder that the realities of British politics before 1914 were more complex and rather different from the whiggish stereotypes about New Liberalism and the rise of Labour and class politics which have dominated our understanding of late Edwardian Britain Jackson's groundbreaking research shows that from the start of the Third Home Rule Bill crisis there was in Britain considerable popular interest in the Irish issue and that the Curragh army mutiny of 1914 was not an isolated incident but part of a wider popular movement A well orchestrated campaign of agitation led by Unionist leaders Sir Edward Carson and Andrew Bonar Law had so exploited patriotic and sectarian resentment at the prospect of Irish Home Rule that by 1914 the United Kingdom was on the verge of civil war Jackson locates this movement at the end of a long nineteenth century where communal and confessional identities were still as powerful as class and where native hostility to Catholicism and Irish migration still prevailed This work shows that the rhetoric and street theatre of Carsonism had as much resonance in Britain as Protestant Ulster where enormous crowds turned out to protest against Home Rule throughout Great Britain and not just in the sectarian cauldrons of Liverpool and Glasgow For Jackson the study of these massive demonstrations becomes a way of capturing the opinions of those rendered voiceless by history and shows how the Ulster question allowed Conservative politicians to bridge the gap between elites and masses and elicit a degree of popular enthusiasm unmatched in the years before the Great War [John Heywood's standard lesson series in geography.
