

Upper Atmosphere

The Earth's atmosphere has four primary layers: the troposphere, stratosphere, mesosphere, and thermosphere. These layers protect our planet by absorbing harmful radiation.

Aeronomy of Ice in the Mesosphere (AIM)

AIM's primary focus is the Mesosphere (M) which has recently come right to hand thanks to the mesosphere. These nocturnal clouds are made of ice crystals that form over the summer pole at an altitude of 80 km and a temperature too cold for water vapor clouds.

Thermosphere

85-575 Miles

In the Thermosphere, molecules of oxygen and nitrogen are ionospheric by molecules and completely ionized from the Sun, creating the ionosphere. It and the first ionosphere above are creating heat. The Thermosphere increases in temperature with altitude because the atomic oxygen and nitrogen cannot radiate the heat from this absorption.

Mesosphere

50-85 Miles

During the mesosphere it is possible to understand why this change in the Earth's atmosphere and why there is change. This is because there is a change in temperature in most changes in atmosphere (density and composition). It could provide them to identify, and it is the only phenomenon that can provide a change in temperature in a stable temperature in the atmosphere.

Stratosphere

10-50 Miles

The lower layer has within the stratosphere and stratosphere exhibits heat from the Sun.

Troposphere

0-10 Miles

The Troposphere is the layer of the Earth's atmosphere where all human activity takes place.

Ionosphere

The ionosphere is a layer of plasma formed by the ionization of atomic oxygen and nitrogen by highly energetic ultraviolet and X-ray solar radiation. The ionosphere extends from the bottom of the stratosphere up to the magnetosphere. This layer varies daily in the daytime compared to solar radiation causes the ionization of the atoms, but can reflect waves as far as the ionosphere. However, from upper atmospheric layers are with steady motion, with only one in a million particles becoming charged daily. At night, the ionosphere slowly collapses as the Earth's magnetic current is aligned with the atoms in the Thermosphere. There are still small amounts of charged atoms caused by cosmic radiation.

Balloons, Balloons, and Satellites

AIM scientists use balloons to collect in-situ measurements in the atmosphere. However, the mesosphere and thermosphere are too high for balloons to reach, so scientists use instruments on sounding balloons and satellites to gather more detailed measurements of the upper atmosphere.

Communication

A unique property of the ionosphere is that it can reflect short-wave radio waves, enabling communication over great distances by "bouncing" signals off the natural atmospheric layer. Variability of the ionosphere can interrupt satellite communication, such as errors in GPS signals for commercial air navigation. During solar storms, this layer can even shut down communication between ground stations and satellites.

Nocturnal Clouds in the Mesosphere

Evidence of changes in the behavior of nocturnal clouds has been observed by the AIM mission. Recent data show dramatically less in ice content, leading scientists to speculate about changes in weather conditions and pole-to-pole atmospheric circulation.

AIMMS

The Ballot Army for Radiation-Induced Molecular Structure Losses (AIMMS) is a balloon-based mission to expand the measurements of NASA's MSU spacecraft. AIMMS seeks to measure the propagation of molecular electrons from the ionosphere levels during two multi-balloon campaigns operated in the Southern Hemisphere.
