Urban Soils Rattan Lal, B. A. Stewart, 2017-10-18 Globally 30% of the world population lived in urban areas in 1950 54% in 2016 and 66% projected by 2050 The most urbanized regions include North America Latin America and Europe Urban encroachment depletes soil carbon and the aboveground biomass carbon pools enhancing the flux of carbon from soil and vegetation into the atmosphere Thus urbanization has exacerbated ecological and environmental problems Urban soils are composed of geological material that has been drastically disturbed by anthropogenic activities and compromised their role in the production of food aesthetics of residential areas and pollutant dynamics Properties of urban soils are normally not favorable to plant growth the soils are contaminated by heavy metals and are compacted and sealed Therefore the quality of urban soils must be restored to make use of this valuable resource for delivery of essential ecosystem services e.g. food water and air quality carbon sequestration temperature moderation biodiversity Part of the Advances in Soil Sciences Series Urban Soils explains properties of urban soils assesses the effects of urbanization on the cycling of carbon nitrogen and water and the impacts of management of urban soils soil restoration urban agriculture and food security evaluates ecosystem services provisioned by urban soils and describes synthetic and artificial soils

Urban Landscape Management James Hitchmough, 1994 This book has been written for use by students and practitioners of the wide range of disciplines involved in some way in the landscape Some of the content is descriptive and addresses the means by which various aspects of landscape management can be carried out most effectively This is supplemented by a more philosophical discussion on why certain courses of action are or are not undertaken Whilst the book is concerned primarily with landscape management rather than design wherever possible management is set in a context of consideration for the aesthetic values of the urban landscape Jacket

Recarbonization of the Biosphere Rattan Lal,Klaus Lorenz,Reinhard F. Hüttel,Bernd Uwe Schneider,Joachim von Braun,2012-03-30 Human activities are significantly modifying the natural global carbon C cycles and concomitantly influence climate ecosystems and state and function of the Earth system Ever increasing amounts of carbon dioxide CO₂ are added to the atmosphere by fossil fuel combustion but the biosphere is a potential C sink Thus a comprehensive understanding of C cycling in the biosphere is crucial for identifying and managing biospheric C sinks Ecosystems with large C stocks which must be protected and sustainably managed are wetlands peatlands tropical rainforests tropical savannas grasslands degraded desertified lands agricultural lands and urban lands However land based sinks require long term management and a protection strategy because C stocks grow with a progressive improvement in ecosystem health
