

Does person-centred language mean eliminating necessary words?

MYTH

I must never use words like "confused" or "aggressive" in a patient chart.

FACT

There may be occasions when I need to use words like "confused" or "aggressive" and when I do, I will attempt to add specific and objective descriptions of behaviour.

The Language Myth:

The Language Myth Vyvyan Evans,2014-10-02 Drawing on cutting edge research Evans presents an alternative to the received wisdom showing how language and the mind really work

The Language Myth Roy Harris,1981

The Language Myth in Western Culture Roy Harris,2002 The basic claim of this book is that for 2000 years and more the western tradition has relied on two very dubious assumptions about human communication that each national language is a unique code and that linguistic communication consists in the utilization of such codes to transfer messages from mind to mind

Language Myths and the History of English Richard J. Watts,2011-03-03 Language Myths and the History of English deconstructs common myths about the historical development of English and looks at the ideological reasons for their existence

Translation in Signs Sinéad Kwok,2026-02-11 What is translation What is a sign This book answers these questions and gives a critical review of how the West has been theorising translation in terms of theorising the sign a unit of our communication From the promotion of servitude to the craving for creativity the suspicious conceit of equivalence to the new fangled notion of untranslatability the concept of translation as a one off specialised process that takes place between human languages to one of translation as a ceaseless happening which goes beyond languages and humans this book dives into these popular discourses on translation one by one and unveils the underlying assumptions about the sign What should a sign mean Does the sign stand in for something in reality something in our mind or does it not stand for anything at all How do we identify and share the same form of signs How do we communicate via signs These are the questions everyone has to answer whether they know it or not when they conceptualise translation This book also proffers a refreshing take on translation stemming from the integrational theory of the sign as founded by Roy Harris This book provides a theory of translation based on a theory of the personal integrational sign that will hopefully illuminate readers own experience with translation and with sign making It is a book for students of linguistics semiotics and translation as well as lay sign makers and translators alike

Models of the Human in Twentieth-Century Linguistic Theories Feifei Zhou,2020-03-17 This book provides a refreshingly new perspective for investigating linguistic texts which foregrounds models of the human It presents a close reading of major linguistic theories in the twentieth century with a focus on three main themes linguistic system and the individual speaker social order and linguistic creativity The examination of these three fundamental themes concerning language and human nature on the one hand provides a fine textured exposition on the implicit and explicit models of human nature endorsed by major theorists on the other it reveals the methodological dilemmas faced by linguistics In light of the fact that the importance of considering posthumanist ideas is increasingly being underscored today both within and outside linguistics this focus on the human makes the book highly topical

Integrational Linguistics Maria Manoliu-Manea,2023-07-24 This collection of readings is complementary to Introduction to Integrational Linguistics Language Communication Library Vol 17 but can be used independently It brings together for the first time 24 key papers in integrational linguistics and is intended to serve as a basic reading list for students and others making the first acquaintance with the subject Originally published in sources that are for the most part out of print these papers have been revised and updated by their authors where necessary They are arranged in six sections Language and Communication Language and the Language Myth Language and Meaning Language and Discourse Language and Writing and Language and Society An editorial introduction discusses the individual contributions and their relevance to integrationist theory
