The Science of Living With Patience and Understanding John Davidson,2013-05-15 The Science of Living With Patience and Understanding Table of Contents Introduction Why Can t We Admit That We Are Wrong Have the Strength to Take the Blame I Am Always Right Can t You Do Anything Right I Just Hate That Habit of His Hers Living with Showoffs Bringing Up Baby For the Sake of Argument Open Windows On Your Mind Listening to Your Views with Patience Conclusion Introduction How many times have you heard a person tell you brightly that they could achieve some particular goal or do something but they do not seem to have the patience In fact they are quite proud of the fact that they leave things half way because they do not have the patience to complete it Others are going to tell you all about losing patience with another person who does not see their point of view And then the argument gets to be really acrimonious and friendships break because of a loss of understanding and patience on the part of one stubborn person Well the science of living book is going to tell you all about the importance of patience in your life when touched with understanding I remember an instance when I was traveling with a couple of friends in their car to visit some more friends for the weekend This was the first instance that we were driving down to their weekend cottage in the country The atmosphere was very pleasant and we were looking forward to amusing times with friends when one of those all too frequent arguments started up between the husband was driving and the wife was reading the map I could see that we were well and truly lost and would inevitably not keep our luncheon appointment We do not have the GPS installed because it had not come into vogue lo those many years ago So arguments over Map reading were extremely common and many of us who remember such instances in our own lives are going to smile reminiscently these concepts are known as Adlerian psychology His theories focused on the feelings of inferiority and how each person tries to overcome such feelings by overcompensating trying too hard to make up for what is lacking Adler claimed that an individual s lifestyle becomes established by the age of four or five and he stressed the importance of social forces or the child s environment on the development of behavior He believed that each person is born with the ability to relate to other people and realize the importance of society as a whole As a therapist Adler was a teacher who focused on a patient s mental health not sickness Adler encouraged self improvement by pinpointing the error in patients lives and correcting it He thought of himself as an enabler one who guides the patient through self determination so that the patients themselves can make changes and improve their state Adler was a pioneer in that he was one of the first psychiatrists to use therapy in social work
