David M. Howard, Damian T. Murphy

The Science Of The Singing Voice:

The Science of the Singing Voice Johan Sundberg, 1987 Although there are numerous books dealing with the science and acoustics of speech there are relatively few that deal with the singing voice as distinct from the speaking voice Now Johan Sundberg's The Science of the Singing Voice illustrated with over a hundred instructive and significant diagrams and drawings thoroughly describes the structure and functions of the vocal organs in singing from the aerodynamics of respiration through the dynamics of articulation

The Science of Voice Douglas Stanley, 1929

The Science of Vocal Pedagogy D. Ralph Appelman, 1986 Drawing upon the sciences of acoustics linguistics and physiology D. Ralph Appelman advances a system of teaching voice based on the International Phonetic Alphabet His premises are that vocal pedagogy requires an understanding of physiological and physical processes that the singer and the voice teacher need pedagogical tools to link this scientific knowledge with the art of vocalization that the word in the art song provides such a tool for it conveys the primary meaning of the utterance that the art song therefore demands intelligibility as well as beauty and that if the art song is to attain the aesthetic level demanded by the music and the text the singer must master a refined and orderly vocal system Liberally illustrated with photographs x rays spectrograms palatograms charts drill materials and drawings this text develops the total process of disciplined vocal utterance progressing from the physiological aspects of phonation to the elements of aesthetic interpretation and the art of combining the two in song
