C. Bruce Fraelich,1979 Abstract This study began with the question What is involved in the process of becoming a self directed learner Heuristic and phenomenological research methods were the mode of investigation First I turned inward and traced the roots of this question within myself Then turning outward I began to question how others experienced themselves as becoming more self directed learners This led to the enlistment of collaborators as co researchers It was my intention to explore the lived in experiences of these collaborators through mutual dialogue In doing so it was envisioned that by identifying certain points on a continuum of experience the process by which a person becomes a self directed learner would be illuminated No particular hypotheses or assumptions were generated with respect to the outcome of this study The experiences related through dialogue were attended to in and of themselves for meaning Equal weight of importance was given to each experience A search for emergent themes and patterns was then initiated through seeking an inner awareness and an intuitive grasp of what the dialogues offered This resulted in the identification of a definite but fluid process that maximizes human growth and potential Self directed learning and a person s being in the world are one and the same The implications of this study are of particular relevance for students and teachers They discuss the path of self directing learning for students and clarify related issues for teachers The Self-Directed Learner
