20. Whose Forests?

Daughter of the jungle

Look at the picture. Where do you think these children are off to, with little bundles on their sticks? When you find out you too would want to go with them!

The children are going to the forest. There they jump, run, climb trees and sing songs in their language called Kuduk. They pick the fallen flowers and leaves, to weave them into necklaces.

Art by Anshu

They enjoy the wild fruits. They look for birds, whose calls they imitate. Joining them in all this fun is their favourite didi – Suryamani.

Every Sunday Suryamani takes the children to the forest. As they move around, she shows them how to recognise the trees, the plants, and animals. Children enjoy this special class in a forest! Suryamani always says, "To learn to read the forest is as important as reading books." She says, "We are forest people (adivasis). Our lives are linked to the forests. If the forests are not there, we too will not remain."

Suryamani's story is a true story. Suryamani is a 'Girl Star'. 'Girl Stars' is a project which tells extraordinary tales of ordinary girls, who have changed their lives by going to school.

Teacher's Note : Encourage children to share their experiences and imagination about forests. Planting thousands of trees does not make a forest. It is important to discuss the web of relationships between plants, trees and animals in a forest, to see how they depend on each other for food, security and habitat.

Metamorphosis and the transition from larvae or embryos to juveniles in fishes are important in order to answer for example questions about 1 life history styles and their modifications in evolutionary perspective and within current environmental demands 2 the development and application of fisheries recruitment models 3 the use of ontogenetic scales for interspecific comparisons 4 the identification of ontogenetic shifts in resource use and 5 the discovery of evolutionary interrelationships of species or genera This volume is dedicated to recent studies and reviews of existing knowledge on this insufficiently addressed area of ichthyology Most of the papers in this volume were presented in Bratislava Slovakia at the 1st International Workshop of the Fish Ontogeny Network of Europe FONE in September 1997 a meeting sponsored in part by the European Commission This volume emphasizes an integrated approach to the study of fish ontogeny which is a process during which one event is related to another and everything is related to everything else encompassing physiology morphology behaviour and niche Within this comprehensive perspective the papers in this volume are grouped along four major themes reflections on early ontogeny and metamorphosis organism environment relationships ontogeny of predator prey interactions and behaviour and ontogeny Among other issues the papers consider topics such as whether one can identify when fish metamorphosis ends whether the larva period begins with hatching or with the onset of exogenous feeding whether fish ontogeny is saltatory or gradual and whether larvae are eliminated in some fishes with direct development The keynote paper of this volume reviews the main topics within contemporary paradigms and the final paper concludes that the onset of the juvenile period can be identified in some species but precision remains problematic emphasizing the need for further research in this dynamic area of fish biology      Who's who in New England ,1909      The National Underwriter
