Xenophobes Guide To The Austrians:

Xenophobe's Guide to the Austrians Louis James, 2010 A guide to understanding the Austrians that delves into the cultural curiosities and peculiar characteristics of this land locked nation The Austrian needs lots of persuading to have his traditions tampered with in the name of modernization and efficiency He is attached to his sausage his insipid beer and the young white wine that tastes so remarkably like iron filings He prefers the familiar tried and tested to the novelty the latter almost certainly being an attempt by persons unknown to make money at his expense Home life for the Austrians is a never ending quest for Gemutlichkeit or coziness which is achieved by accumulating objects that run the gamut from the pleasingly aesthetic to the mind blowingly kitsch In Austria detonating pretension is a national pastime It has to do with attitudes to power that date back to an absolutist form of government and with the self irony developed by people who were or thought they were more talented than the authority to which they had to defer The paradoxical character of the Austrian mingles profoundly conservative attitudes with a flair for innovation and invention This creative tension usually takes the form of official obstructionism to good ideas but sometimes the other way round For example the population were outraged by Josef II s attempt to make them adopt reusable coffins with flaps on the underside for dropping out the corpses The Emperor was forced to retreat grumbling as he did so about the people s wasteful attitude

Exclusion* Michal Krzyzanowski,2017 In many European countries the extreme right have refined their electoral programmes under the rubric of nationalist populist slogans and have adopted subtle forms of racism The move away from overt neo fascist discourse has allowed these parties to expand their electoral support as populist nationalist parties Paradoxically this has led to an increase in racist and anti Semitic discourse In this on site analysis Michal Krzyzanowski and Ruth Wodak describe a confluence of racism and xenophobia and show how that union creates a new kind of racism The new racism differs from the older kinds in that it is usually not expressed in overtly racial terms Instead the justifications that are typically employed concern protecting jobs eliminating abuse of welfare benefits or cultural incompatibilities The new racism exploits xenophobia rooted in ethnocentrism male chauvinism and ordinary prejudices that are often unconscious or routinized For these reasons the new racism can be defined as syncretic a mixture of many sometimes contradictory racist and xenophobic beliefs and stereotypes Racism as ideology and practice is alive and well This important book aims to provide understanding of the many socio political and historical processes involved in such expressions of institutional and individual racism processes which are not necessarily evident from more overt or traditional expressions of racism This is an innovative look at the political study of language as well as new instances of race ethnicity and class in present day Europe Provided by
