Integration of Public and Technical Services Functions B. J. Busch, Association of Research Libraries. Office of Management Studies, 1986. This study explores current trends and practices in functional integration based on site visits to six Association of Research Libraries (ARL) member libraries selected on the basis of their responses to a Fall 1984 ARL questionnaire. The responses indicated that for all six libraries, some integration of functions existed; staff reorganization was underway or complete; cataloging was taking place in public areas; and professional librarians were participating in both public and technical services functions. The current situation of the six libraries and their decisions to reorganize are summarized, and the following developments and issues are considered: 1. collection management and service to users; 2. impact of automation; 3. organizational climate; 4. flexible use of staff; 5. staff morale; 6. reporting relationships; and 7. recruitment and training. Increased information delivery and an expansion outward in client-centered groupings are identified as possible future trends for public service areas, along with the continuing compression of massive technical services departments. It is concluded that leadership and staff participation, as well as a clear sense of where the institution is going, are vital ingredients in successful organizational change. Notes and a 61-item selected bibliography are provided, and a listing of the issues addressed is appended.

KM Challenging the Research Complex Joel Samoff, 2025-03-31. Starting with an overview of the intersection of local and global dynamics in education in Africa, this book focuses critical attention on education research and the problematic research process. Education held extraordinary promise at Africa's independence. Rapid expansion in access and imaginative innovations followed, but progress proved difficult to sustain. As frustration displaced optimism, recourse to foreign aid became common. Education in Africa critical to national development combines high expectations and enthusiasm with distress and dependence. Local and global agendas intersect. External influence is internalized. Research is consequential, especially in reinforcing the conservative charter of most education systems in Africa, more concerned with reproducing the national political economy than changing it. Notwithstanding disciplinary border crossings, methodological orthodoxy is blinding. Social engineering remains more important than social justice Scholarship about Africa is only rarely by Africa Scholars study poverty and miss impoverishment This book unpacks those relationships exploring the narrow gaze of education research and its problematic character Examining the research complex interconnected institutions with distributed authority acting in concert requires attention to how knowledge is generated where and to whose benefit On this important and exciting terrain Africa education research readers will find this an accessible and stimulating analysis
