Solitary Explorer:

The Solitary Explorer Elena Malits, 2014-09-17 The Solitary Explorer responsibly and critically explores Thomas Merton's lifelong spiritual development as reflected in his religious and secular writings and delineates the meaning of his life and work for contemporary readers. It provides an interpretive chronology of Merton's writings and unravels the intertwining threads of self-realization and widening intellectual interests evidenced in the material he produced between his early autobiography and the controversial work of his later years. Elena Malits shows Merton as writer, as monk, as social critic, as seeker of wisdom in the East, as man of prayer, and as one continually on a journey into the unknown. Merton always held that the quest for God is a continuing one. The Solitary Explorer traces the progress of this quest in Merton's life and literary works to reveal a multifaceted spiritual guide who offers an approach to the divine, at once reassuringly traditional and refreshingly contemporary.

Playing and Exploring R.A. Hodgkin, 2025-10-01 First published in 1985. Playing and Exploring draws on many disciplines in order to formulate a new way of thinking about the nature and power of education. As so often with creative thinkers, Robin Hodgkin's work is at once subversive and conservative. He is radical in insisting on the overriding need to question and subvert the external examination systems that now cripple education and to raise standards by other means; conservative in asserting with Polanyi that an individual's or a group's enterprise draws on a living tradition. The book's most important contribution is to our understanding of the educational needs of young adults, of the need for adventure and commitment. The author develops a theoretical model that begins with the infant exploring its play space. He argues that the learner is an active frontier exploring agent, so too must be any effective teacher. Robin Hodgkin brings forward important new evidence from neuropsychology to show why doing is so important in teaching and learning. His argument that both visual and linguistic competence must cooperate actively in the learning process raises a fundamental question about the part television plays in our culture. In this, as in his earlier books, his work is concerned with the real priorities in education, with demonstrating that first-hand feelings of friendship, of wonder, and of danger should be part of the education of all people, especially adolescents, and that our greatest and certainly most expensive failure is to deny the experience of educational success to so many children

Archetypes of Conversion Anne Hunsaker Hawkins, 2014-03-07 This sensitive and imaginative study explores the phenomenon of conversion in three major religious autobiographies the Confessions of Saint Augustine Grace Abounding by John Bunyan and Thomas Merton's The Seven Storey Mountain These three religious figures could hardly be more different and yet as Hawkins shows their conversion narratives are remarkably similar in patterns of theme figure and action This archetypal approach is particularly appropriate to spiritual autobiography which is less concerned with self than with soul and which seeks to relate the individual to a divine reality that is universal and timeless Hawkins approach to these texts is sophisticated yet free of jargon and doctrinaire psychologizing Here archetypal analysis becomes not an end in itself but also a means to investigate the complexity of the individual text Hawkins archetypal analysis serves not only to discern continuities but also to explore cultural ideological and psychological variations Adapting William James's distinction between crisis and lysis conversion Hawkins shows that the conversion paradigm central to each autobiography determines its religious meaning its formal structure and its archetypal emphases The author approaches the phenomena of conversion with a blend of critical detachment and imaginative sympathy She is always careful to honor the authenticity of religious experience and for this reason her commentary succeeds in illuminating it The result is an interdisciplinary study that will appeal to the psychologist and literary critic as well as the student of religion But these narratives of conversion offer paradigms that apply to any deeply significant change for they are of interest and concern to all readers seeking to find meaning in their lives Hawkins makes us feel both the immediacy and the permanence of these texts for What is human in them speaks to what is human in us
