

1. The Cabin in the Wilderness

Once there was a family named Hemlock who lived, in another time, near the base of Cascom Mountain, a high bold mountain of hardwood trees, dark evergreens and granite crags. There were no other houses for a hundred miles of forests and meadows and swamps, lakes and rivers blue and unnamed where the swift animals lived in their ways, running and flying, and the slow animals blinked away their long years.

Tim Hemlock was a hunter, a maker of things, and a farmer; he and Eugenia had cleared the kitchen garden and their two small fields and held them open against the shadowing woods that always wanted to creep in, fill the openings with trunks and roof them with leaves. Tim was a silent, thoughtful man, kind enough to his family and to his animals, though at times he seemed to hear voices that made him sad and stern. He watched and listened a great deal, as a man must in the wilderness, but there was more to his watching and his silence than he ever told his family. He worked and cared for them, that they knew, but he would never tell them what he waited for, what he might hope to see in the shapes of the storm clouds over Cascom Mountain, or to hear in the voices of the wind.

In the Hemlocks' log cabin, Jen, who was seven, was helping her mother with the big wooden butter churn, spelling her mother while the clabber was new and the crank easy to turn. Arn, who was nearly ten, was out in the cold storage cave dug into the hill behind the cabin, helping his father cut the venison jerky they would dry in long strips in the short-lived October sun. For it was fall, the time before the cold storms would come with the white hiss of snow over the mountain. They were preparing for the long dark season when the days would be short and the wind like knives, when their cow, Oka, and their ox, Brin, and the two goats and the pig would barely heat the small barn with their bodies. The barn was barer now, for their bull, who had been the brother of Brin, had wandered away from the pasture in the spring and never returned. And Oka's calf had died at birth. In the cabin the fireplace would burn by day and ember by night, eating the precious cords of
