State Professional Standards Practices Commissions Or Boards A Policy Analysis Paper:

State Professional Standards/practices Commissions Or Boards K. Forbis Jordan, American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, 1988 This monograph explores the implicit and explicit public policy issues inherent in the debate over who is responsible for teacher certification and standards A question is raised on the process to be used in making key decisions about the content of teacher education programs and entry into teaching The issue of whether state agencies will continue to set the policies that determine entry into teaching or whether national teacher organizations in concert with non public agencies will become the dominant force is discussed The role of schools colleges and departments of education is also examined National teacher organizations have supported the creation of standards practices commissions but current pressures for creating these bodies are coming from education reform advocates as well as state political figures Interest in creating commissions appears to be high and this may contribute to dramatic changes in the structure and content of teacher preparation programs It is pointed out that opportunities to have more power in setting licensing standards and reviewing professional practices may be short lived unless educators are perceived as capable of meeting the challenge JD The Alternative Certification of Teachers ERIC Clearinghouse on Teacher Education, Washington, DC., 1992 Criticisms of teacher education the low economic and political costs of trying to reform schools by reforming teacher education along with the difficulty of filling some teaching positions with persons certified in traditional ways have fueled a movement to create alternative routes to teacher certification in the vast majority of states This monograph seeks to inform the ongoing policy debate over when and for what purposes alternative certification of teachers should be employed and to develop lessons that might lead to increasing the effectiveness of both alternative certification and traditional programs of teacher preparation Following an introduction the publication consists of six articles 1 The Theory and Practice of Alternative Certification Implications for the Improvement of Teaching Willis D Hawley 2 Alternative Certification in Connecticut Reshaping the Profession Traci Bliss 3 Alternative Certification State Policies in the SREB Southern Regional Education Board States Lynn M Cornett 4 Los Angeles Unified School District Intern Program Recruiting and Preparing Teachers for an Urban Context Trish Stoddart 5 Teaching and Knowledge Policy Issues Posed by Alternate Certification for Teachers Linda Darling Hammond and 6 The Place of Alternative Certification in the Education of Teachers Gary D Fenstermacher Selected references for each chapter are included LL Resources in Education ,1990 Handbook of Research on Teacher Education John P. Sikula, Association of Teacher Educators, 1996 In 1990 the first edition of the Handbook of Research on Teacher Education offered a comprehensive introduction to research based reform in the classroom emphasizing the need to create effective educational models in direct response to the evolving needs of different school settings Six years later as research based reform continues to strike a balance between the academic theories and classroom realities of our nation s schools the second edition of the Handbook seeks to balance the transitory nature of a career in education with the long term
