2. Required Study Guide: Hendricks, D.J., Walls, R. T., & Heiman, G. W. (2011). Basic Statistics for the Behavioral Sciences: Student Workbook and Study Guide (6th edition). Cengage. ISBN: 9780495909590

Learning Outcomes: By the end of the course you should:

- A. Identify and explain the levels of measurement and terminology used in statistical analysis.
- B. Explain and effectively apply descriptive and inferential statistics for each level of data.
- C. Interpret statistical analyses based on behavioral and social research problems.

Professor's Message: Those of you who plan to continue on in psychology, sociology and/or research need this course as it contributes to the foundations of your scientific career. The information and skills you learn in this course will help you in every step of the research process. In addition, the skills you acquire in this course will be essential as you move into more advanced courses where you will read scientific journal articles and be required to think critically about their findings and the interpretation of their results. Most of you however, will not end up pursuing a research-oriented career. Regardless of your career goal, you should be educated consumers of information. The knowledge you acquire in this course will allow you to think critically about information that you are exposed to on a daily basis.

Students with disabilities: "Students with disabilities who believe they may need accommodations in this class are encouraged to contact Disabled Student Programs & Services located at Student Services Building, 1st Floor, Counseling Center (661-395-4334), as soon as possible to better ensure such accommodations are implemented in a timely fashion."
