

From a private set of original color slides, this photo shows Western Australian Government Railways Class W 4-6-2 steam locomotive No. 904 on the turntable in Collie, Western Australia. A second steam locomotive is seen behind the turntable. Collie roundhouse still exists, along with the turntable. Answerer books have long since been abandoned. No. 904 was built by Beyer Peacock in 1916 (BP 7381). It entered service on 21 May of the same year and withdrawn on 17 June 1971. Of the many members of this class, those are known to have escaped the cutter's torch and are on static display in various museums in Australia.

The South Australian Railway ordered a 2-2-0FT steam railcar from Kinnear of Leeds in 1901. More than a century later, this is a recent view of the same railcar. It is now in the care of the Eight Oaks Railway Preservation Society, and goes by the amusing name of The Collier Pit. Seating is provided for nine first and thirteen second class passengers in separate compartments. Previously referred to as Steam Motor Coach 1 when it was still under South Australian Railways ownership, this train was used on a weekly parcels and mail trip to Hawker, in the Flinders Ranges area of South Australia. It was also available for charter, and was regularly used to carry tennis and football clubs. The Collier Pit returned to service in 1984 following an extensive restoration project. It is the only example of its type still operating in the world. (Photo by Caleb's Rail Films)

Sixty years ago in Australia, Maffra Railway of Western Australia steam locomotive No. C 18 (Kinnear 4885, 1912) on a rail tour on 9 October 1960. The MRRWA had effectively disbanded in 1958, but retained C 18 on standby. It was used on a couple of rail tours in 1960 and 1962. Retired in April 1963, it was cut up in July 1963. A steam train in New Zealand. Beautifully restored and in full running condition, No. 7 (Kinnear 2402, 1911) was one of eight units delivered to the Canterbury Tramway Company. It was acquired in the 1960s from the Christchurch Transport Board and thoroughly restored. It first went into service on the opening of the Ferrymead Tramway in January 1968. It is believed to be one of only three Kinnear steam trains that remain in existence, and the only one still in operating order. (Photo by Bernard Spragg)

Steam Railways Around the World Keith Strickland,1998-04-23 A selection of black and white photographs of steam railways in eleven countries

The Best of Steam Keith Strickland,2015 After forty years of adventuring around the world's remaining steam railways Keith Strickland has compiled the very best of his vast collection of railway photographs From Austria to Zimbabwe and beyond this book the fifth of his photographic albums celebrates parts of the world which have comprised some of Keith's favourite steam destinations reminisces about steam railways which have been lost and marvels at those which still constitute a major part of the local area's infrastructure Keith's photographs not only reflect the unique atmosphere of steam trains but are also a record of an era which is now history With informative and interesting captions this is a book which will appeal to armchair travellers as well as to steam fans
