Advances in Research on Neurodegeneration P. Riederer, D.B. Calne, R. Horowski, Y. Mizuno, W. Poewe, M.B.H. Youdim, 2013-03-09 Volume 5 of the series Advances in Research on Neurodegeneration is concerned with themes which are currently the focus of intensive research and in which advances in our understanding of the pathological mechanisms underlying neurodegenerative diseases are expected in the near future. The first section contains five reviews devoted to the various neuroimaging technologies. The discussion is concerned with the question of whether neuroimaging techniques make it possible to follow the process of degeneration as it occurs and which methods offer the required sensitivity and quantifiability for this purpose. However, the question needs to be examined of whether, given the physical and chemical limitations of these techniques, even under optimal conditions, anatomical resolution can be improved to the extent that neurodegenerative diseases can be diagnosed earlier than currently possible and a confident diagnosis made. The possibilities of using neuroimaging techniques to provide information regarding the effects of neuroprotective or neuroregenerative therapeutic strategies and for correlating the results of neuropsychological research with imaging data are also discussed. The second section is concerned with the significance of endogenous or exogenous neurotoxins as triggers for neurodegenerative processes that may lead to Parkinsonism. Vulnerability factors which include such factors as nerve ending sensitivity, the synergistic effects of drugs, and the various mechanisms underlying different toxins are discussed.

The Cell Cycle in the Central Nervous System Damir Janigro, 2008-01-23. Cell Cycle in the Central Nervous System overviews the changes in cell cycle as they relate to prenatal and postnatal brain development, progression to neurological disease, or tumor formation. Topics covered range from the cell cycle during the prenatal development of the mammalian central nervous system to future directions in postnatal neurogenesis through gene transfer, electrical stimulation, and stem cell introduction. Additional chapters examine the postnatal development of neurons and glia, the regulation of cell cycle in glia, and how that regulation may fail in pretumor conditions or following a nonneoplastic CNS response to injury. Highlights include treatments of the effects of deep brain stimulation on brain development and repair, the connection between the electrophysiological properties of neuroglia, cell cycle, and tumor progression, and the varied immunological responses and their regulation by cell cycle.

Apoptosis, 1999-12-09. This text is designed to provide conceptual outlines and detailed procedures for basic and advanced studies of cell death by apoptosis. Chapters on the recognition of apoptosis as distinguished from necrosis and nonspecific cell DNA damage are followed by a systematic examination of the established and the principal novel methodologies utilized by some leading laboratories conducting research on apoptosis. The organization is on the lines of signalling for apoptosis, the apoptotic cascade, and the execution of apoptosis. A wide variety of procedures are provided which will enable the reader to participate in cutting edge research.
