Realizing the Impossible Josh MacPhee, Erik Reuland, 2007-01-01 Looks at the history of the depiction of anti authoritarian social movements in art "We Called Each Other Comrade" Allen Ruff, 2011-07-01 This is the history of the most significant translator publisher and distributor of left wing literature in the United States Based in Chicago and still publishing Charles H Kerr Company began in 1886 as a publisher of Unitarian tracts The company's focus changed after its founder the son of abolitionist activists became a socialist at the turn of the century Tracing Kerr's political development and commitment to radical social change We Called Each Other Comrade also tells the story of the difficulties of exercising the First Amendment in an often hostile business and political climate A fascinating exploration in left wing culture this revealing chronicle of Charles H Kerr and his revolutionary publishing company looks at the remarkable list of books periodicals and pamphlets that the firm produced and traces the strands of a rich tradition of dissent in America Poetics of Indigenismo in Zapatista Discourse Gregory Stephens, 2019-04-01 This book contributes to a re-visioning of the literature of revolutions repositioning the writings of Subcomandante Marcos as quasi indigenous literary texts Highlights include a study of the role of Zapatista mythopoetics in re-imagining the nature of revolution and an examination of how a native subculture and cosmivision were made intelligible to an international audience Close readings of a group of stories essays and communiques by Marcos explore the emergence of a thoroughly hybrid literary style These texts are analyzed in relation to existing genres such as Native American literature environmental literature and the literature of the Mexican revolution The book shows that while Marcos employs the iconography of Che Guevara Zapata et al and in some ways furthers the romance of revolution for an electronically networked world he has also popularized on an international stage the post Cold War aspiration to change the world without taking power
