White Hotel:

The White Hotel D. M. Thomas, 1990-04 A chronicle of a woman's life told first through Freud's letters then through a case history of her analysis and finally through conventional narrative Holocaust Fiction Sue Vice, 2000 This text presents a critical survey of a broad range of fictional representations of the Holocaust published over the last 20 years History and the Contemporary Novel David Cowart, 1989 Cowart presents a study of international historical fiction since World War II with reflections on the affinities between historical and fictional narrative analysis of the basic modes of historical fiction and readings of a number of historical novels including John Barth's The Sot-Weed Factor Marguerite Yourcenar's Memoirs of Hadrian Russell Hoban's Riddley Walker Margaret Atwood's The Handmaid's Tale Giuseppe Tomasi Di Lampedusa's The Leopard D. M. Thomas's The White Hotel William Faulkner's Go Down, Moses and Umberto Eco's The Name of the Rose He proposes recognizing four modes of the historical novel: the past as a distant mirror of the present; fictions whose authors seek to pinpoint the precise historical moment when the modern age or some prominent feature of it came into existence; fictions whose authors aspire purely or largely to historical verisimilitude; and fictions whose authors reverse history to contemplate utopia and dystopia in the future. Thus historical fiction can be organized under the rubrics: The Distant Mirror, The Turning Point, The Way It Was, and The Way It Will Be. This fourfold schema and his focus on postwar novels set Cowart's work apart from previous studies which have not devoted adequate space to the contemporary historical novel. Cowart argues that postwar historical fiction merits more extensive treatment because it is the product of an age unique in the annals of history: an age in which history itself may end Waiting for the End Earl G. Ingersoll, 2007 Waiting for the End examines two dozen contemporary novels within the context of a half century of theorizing about the function of ending in narrative. That theorizing about ending generated a powerful dynamic a quarter century ago with the advent of feminist criticism of masculinist readings of the role played by ending in fiction. Feminists such as Theresa de Lauretis in 1984 and more famously Susan Winnett in her 1991 PMLA essay Coming Unstrung were leading voices in a swelling chorus of theorists pointing out the masculinist bias of ending in narrative. With the entry of feminist readings of ending it became inevitable that criticism of fiction would become gendered through the recognition of difference transcending a simple binary of female/male to establish a spectrum of masculine to feminine endings regardless of the sex of the writer. Accordingly Waiting for the End examines pairs of novels: one pair by Margaret Atwood and one by Ian McEwan to demonstrate how a writer can offer endings at either end of the gender spectrum Intimate Violence Laura E. Tanner, 1994-11-22 Tanner deals with the central question of all narrative texts: how the reader is manipulated into empathy or distance by the text. This study is the sort that needs to be redone in every classroom and by every mature reader. Tanner offers provocative and useful discussions of rape and torture. Choice This thoughtful and disturbing book raises serious questions about the consequences of reading representations of rape and torture. American Literature In this incisive exploration of twentieth century novels art and ads Laura Tanner explains the mechanisms by which reader and viewer are implicated in violence Equally effective as a challenge to textual assault is the grace and gentleness of Tanner s own prose Intimate Violence signals the emergence of an astute and humane critical voice Wendy Steiner Through an examination of such notorious works as The White Hotel and American Psycho Laura Tanner leads us in a disturbing exploration of the reader s complicity with fictional depictions of intimate violence
