Statistical Consulting:

Statistical Consulting Javier Cabrera, Andrew McDougall, 2013-04-17 The motivation for this book arose from the statistical consulting course that we have taught regularly for several years. In that course we focus on the themes: Understanding the statistical consulting process, Developing effective communication skills, Obtaining experience through case studies. In reality there is no substitute for consulting directly with a client and for this interaction to be effective good communication skills are essential. Unfortunately this aspect of a statistician's training is often neglected and statistics graduates have little choice but to learn these skills on the job. One of the purposes of this book is to address this need. Statistical consulting occurs in a diverse range of environments and for tackling real life statistical problems the statistician needs to have a strong interest in the scientific method. History itself provides the best examples for developing this interest and so we begin with a brief historical voyage in Chapter 1. There's no time like the present of course and in the remainder of this chapter we describe some of the environments in which statistical consulting plays a major role. A detailed discussion on verbal and written communication skills that will be required in a consulting environment is presented in Chapter 2.

Statistical Consulting Janice Derr, 2000 Dr Janice Derr covers all aspects of statistical consulting. Using text and video she integrates three themes that form the perspective of the book: First a statistician should treat each client as a potential collaborator. Second diversity must be appreciated. Students will see a variety of cultures, styles of communication and negotiation and learning preferences in the book. Third experienced statisticians and clients must work together in the process of training statistical consultants. On the CD ROM video segments bring the material to life and cover each aspect of statistical consulting by demonstrating good and bad techniques. Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 1995 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies, 1994. Topics from Australian Conferences on Teaching Statistics Helen MacGillivray, Brian Phillips, Michael A. Martin, 2014-09-01 The first OZCOTS conference in 1998 was inspired by papers contributed by Australians to the 5th International Conference on Teaching Statistics. In 2008 as part of the program of one of the first National Senior Teaching Fellowships the 6th OZCOTS was held in conjunction with the Australian Statistical Conference with Fellowship keynotes and contributed papers, optional refereeing and proceedings. This venture was so successful that the 7th and 8th OZCOTS were similarly run conjoined with Australian Statistical Conferences in 2010 and 2012. Authors of papers from these OZCOTS conferences were invited to develop chapters for refereeing and inclusion in this volume. There are sections on keynote topics, undergraduate curriculum and learning, professional development, postgraduate learning and papers from OZCOTS 2012. Because OZCOTS aim to unite statisticians and statistics educators the approaches this volume takes are immediately relevant to all who have a vested interest in good teaching practices. Globally statistics as a discipline, statistical pedagogy and statistics in academia and industry are all critically important to the modern information society This volume addresses these roles within the wider society as well as questions that are specific to the discipline itself Other chapters share research on learning and teaching statistics in interdisciplinary work and student preparation for futures in academia government and industry The Human Side of Statistical Consulting James R. Strength in Numbers: The Rising of Academic Statistics Departments in the U. S. Alan Agresti, Xiao-Li Meng, 2012-11-02 Statistical science as organized in formal academic departments is relatively new With a few exceptions most Statistics and Biostatistics departments have been created within the past 60 years This book consists of a set of memoirs one for each department in the U S created by the mid 1960s The memoirs describe key aspects of the department s history its founding its growth key people in its development success stories such as major research accomplishments and the occasional failure story PhD graduates who have had a significant impact its impact on statistical education and a summary of where the department stands today and its vision for the future Read here all about how departments such as at Berkeley Chicago Harvard and Stanford started and how they got to where they are today The book should also be of interests to scholars in the field of disciplinary history Encyclopedia of Computer Science and Technology Allen Kent, James G.

Williams, 1992-10-29 This comprehensive reference work provides immediate fingertip access to state of the art technology in nearly 700 self contained articles written by over 900 international authorities Each article in the Encyclopedia features current developments and trends in computers software vendors and applications extensive bibliographies of leading figures in the field such as Samuel Alexander John von Neumann and Norbert Wiener and in depth analysis of future directions

Newsletter University of Michigan Computing Center, 1985 Teaching of Statistics and Statistical Consulting Jagdish S. Rustagi, Douglas A. Wolfe, 2014-05-10 Teaching of Statistics and Statistical Consulting is a collection of papers dealing with graduate programs in statistics teaching service courses and short courses and training statisticians for employment in industry and government Some papers also deal with the role of statistical consulting in graduate training and teaching statistics at the Open University One paper describes some observations made on graduate program in statistics citing concerns of professionalism competency and a highly structured university curriculum Another paper takes a task analysis approach to designing a regression analysis course where with proper course structuring students will actively learn to do the objectives of the course Other papers discuss consulting and research work at the Australian Government s research organization as well as how to prepare statisticians for future government service or for the private industry One paper deals with some important things that a practicing statistician should know but which are seldom taught in statistics courses Another paper describes teaching statistics at a distance from the Open University in the United Kingdom The collection can prove helpful for academic statisticians in educational institutions to statisticians or to mathematicians employed in the public or private sectors The Statistical Consultant in Action D. J. Hand, B. S. Everitt, Brian Everitt, 2007-12-03 This book presents the human side of statistical consulting and illustrates the problems and opportunities that can arise for the modern consultant. Statistical problems occur in almost all areas of science in medicine in industry in marketing and in finance and a wide range of interests is catered for by the twelve contributions to this unique volume. These contributions demonstrate that statistical consultancy provides a broad spectrum of intellectually stimulating problems as well as being a vital tool in many aspects of modern life. The book will be valuable to university and college students of statistics and to all those who use statistical techniques in a consultancy environment of any kind.

The Basic Practice of Statistics David S. Moore, William I. Notz, Michael A. Fligner, 2017-12-18

Written by an author team of accomplished leaders in statistics education, The Basic Practice of Statistics (BPS) reflects the actual practice of statistics where data analysis and design of data production join with probability based inference to form a coherent science of data. The authors' ultimate goal is to equip students to carry out common statistical procedures and to follow statistical reasoning in their fields of study and in their future employment. The text's long standing renown is built on an inspired framework of balanced content, experience with data, and the importance of ideas. These themes are widely accepted by statisticians concerned about teaching and are directly connected to and reflected by the themes of the College Report of the Guidelines in Assessment and Instruction for Statistics Education (GAISE) Project. The eighth edition of The Basic Practice of Statistics is supported in SaplingPLUS for a user experience of its own. SaplingPLUS combines Macmillan's StatsTools powerful multimedia resources and text specific exercises with the powerful targeted feedback of Sapling Learning where every problem is a teaching and learning opportunity.

Race and Redistricting Tinsley E. Yarbrough, 2002

Through much of the 1990s a newly hatched snake wreaked political havoc in the South. When North Carolina gained a seat in Congress following the 1990 census it sought to rectify a long standing failure to represent African American voters by creating, under federal pressure, two majority minority voting districts. One of these snakes along Interstate 85 for nearly two hundred miles, not much wider than the road itself in some places, and was ridiculed by many as one of the least compact legislative districts ever proposed. From 1993 to 2001 three intertwined cases went before the Supreme Court that decided how far a state could go in establishing voting districts along racial lines. Noted Supreme Court biographer Tinsley Yarbrough examines these closely linked landmark cases to show how the Court addressed the constitutionality of redistricting within the volatile contexts of civil rights and partisan politics. A suit was first filed by Duke University law professor Robinson Everett, a liberal who loathed discrimination but considered racially motivated redistricting a clear violation of the Fourteenth Amendment's equal protection clause. Yarbrough tells how Everett enlisted associates as plaintiffs and went on to win two Supreme Court victories in Shaw v Reno 1993 and Shaw v Hunt 1996 both by 5 4 decisions Following the creation of another flawed redistricting plan he rounded up a new set of plaintiffs to take the battle back to the Supreme Court But this time in Easley v Cromartie on the swing vote of Justice Sandra Day O Connor the 5 4 vote went against him Yarbrough shows the significant impact these cases have had on election law and the fascinating interplay of law politics and human conflict that the dispute generated Drawing heavily on court records and on interviews with attorneys on both sides of the litigation he relates a complex and intriguing tale about these protracted struggles His cogent and balanced analysis considers whether the state legislature was wrong in using race as a measure for establishing the new district or whether it was simply engaging in the time honored practice of gerrymandering to ensure political balance Race and Redistricting spotlights efforts to racially engineer voting districts in an effort to achieve fair representation By examining one state s efforts to confront such dilemmas it helps readers better understand future disputes over race and politics as well as the ongoing debates over our color blind constitution Equal Employment Commission V. Kenosha Unified School District No. 1 ,1979
