narrative of service in the 12th regiment Connecticut volunteer infantry Peace Corps Fantasies Molly Geidel, 2015-09-15
To tens of thousands of volunteers in its first decade the Peace Corps was the toughest job you'll ever love. In the United States popular imagination to this day it is a symbol of selfless altruism and the most successful program of John F. Kennedy's presidency. But in her provocative new cultural history of the 1960s Peace Corps Molly Geidel argues that the agency's representative development ventures also legitimated the violent exercise of American power around the world and the destruction of indigenous ways of life. In the 1960s the practice of development work embodied by iconic Peace Corps volunteers allowed U.S. policy makers to manage global inequality while assuaging their own gendered anxieties about postwar affluence. Geidel traces how modernization theorists used the Peace Corps to craft the archetype of the heroic development worker, a ruggedly masculine figure who would inspire individuals and communities to abandon traditional lifestyles and seek integration into the global capitalist system. Drawing on original archival and ethnographic research, Geidel analyzes how Peace Corps volunteers struggled to apply these ideals. The book focuses on the case of Bolivia where indigenous nationalist movements dramatically expelled the Peace Corps in 1971. She also shows how Peace Corps development ideology shaped domestic and transnational social protest including U.S. civil rights, black nationalist, and antiwar movements. Adventures and Reminiscences of a Volunteer: A Drummer Boy from Maine George T.

Ulmer, 2010-01-01 Bombardment of Fort Sumter This was the beginning and the first sound of actual war which inspired me and kindled the fire of patriotism in my youthful breast. The little spark lay smoldering for two long years till at last it burst forth into a full blaze. When Fort Sumter was bombarded I was a midget of a boy, a barefooted ragged newsboy in the city of New York. The bombardment was threatened for several weeks before it actually occurred and many nights I would have been bankrupted but that everyone was on the qui vive for the event and I got myself into lots of trouble by shouting occasionally Fort Sumter Bombarded. I needed money it sold my papers and I forgave myself. When the authentic news did come I think it stirred up within me as big a piece of fighting desire as it did in larger and older people. I mourned the fact that I was then too small to fight but lived in hopes that the war would last until I should grow. If I could have gone south I felt that I could have conquered the rebellious faction alone so confident was I of my fighting abilities. In the fall of '61 my dear mother died and my father who had a great desire to make possibilities out of improbabilities and believing a farm the proper place to bring up a family of boys bought one away in the interior of Maine. The farm was very hilly covered with huge pines and liberally planted with granite ledges. I used to think God wanted to be generous to this state and gave it so much land it had to be stood up edgeways. Picture to yourself dear reader four boys taken from the busy life of a great city place them in the wilderness of Maine where they had to make a winnow of the forest to secure a garden spot for the house, pry out the stumps and blast the ledges to sow the seed then ask yourself what should the harvest be. Father's business required all of his time in New York City and we were left with two hired men to develop the farm, our brains and muscles but mine didn't seem to develop worth a cent I didn't care for the farmer's life The plow and scythe had no charms for me My horny hardened little hand itched and longed to beat the drums that would marshal men to arms After eight months of hard work we had cleared up quite a respectable little farm an oasis in that forest of pines A new house and barn had been built also new fences and stone walls but not much credit for this belonged to me Soon after we received a letter from father stating that he would be with us in a short time and bring us a new mother and a little step sister This was joyous news the anticipation of a new mother and above all a step sister inspired us with new ambition The fences and barn received a coat of whitewash the stones were picked out of the road in front of the house the wood pile was repiled and everything put into apple pie order We did not know what day they would arrive So each day about the time the stage coach from Belfast should pass the corners we would perch ourselves on the fence in front of the house to watch for it and when it did come in sight wonder if the folks were in it if they were it would turn at the corners and come toward our house Day after day passed and they did not come and we had kind of forgotten about it Finally one day while we were all busy burning brush brother Charlie came rushing towards us shouting The stage coach is coming The stage is coming Well such a scampering for the house We didn't have time to wash or fix up and our appearance would certainly not inspire our city visitors with much paternal pride or affection we looked like charcoal burners Our faces hands and clothes were black and begrimed from the burning brush but we couldn't help it we were obliged to receive and welcome them as we were I pulled up a handful of grass and tried to wipe my face but the grass being wet it left streaks all over it and I looked more like a bogie man than anything else We all struggled to brush up and smooth our hair but it was no use the stage coach was upon us the door opened father jumped out and as we crowded around him he looked at us in perfect amazement and with a kind of humiliated expression behind a pleasant fatherly smile he exclaimed Well well you are a nice dirty looking lot of boys Lizzie addressing his wife and helping her to alight This is our family a little smoky I can't tell which is which so we'll have to wait till they get their faces washed to introduce them by their names But our new mother was equal to the occasion for coming to each of us and taking our dirty faces in her hands kissed us saying at the same time Philip don't you mind they are all nice honest hard working boys and I know I shall like them even if this country air has turned their skins black At this moment a tiny voice called Please help me out All the boys started with a rush each eager to embrace the little step sister I was there first and in an instant in spite of my dirty appearance she sprang from the coach right into my arms my brothers struggled to take her from me but she tightened her little arms about my neck and clung to me as if I was her only protector I started and ran with her my brothers in full chase down the road over the stone walls across the field around the stumps with my prize the brothers keeping up the chase till we were all completely tired out and father compelled us to stop and bring the child to the house Afterward we took our turns at caressing and admiring her finally we apologized for our behavior and dirty faces listened to father's and mother's congratulations concluded father's choice for a wife was a good one and that our little step sister was just exactly as we wanted her to be and the prospect of a bright new and happy home seemed to be already realized
