White Sands:

White Sands National Monument Joseph T. Page II, 2013 The White Sands National Monument is a U S National Monument located about 25 km 16 mi southwest of Alamogordo in western Otero County and northeastern Do a Ana County in the state of New Mexico at an elevation of 4235 feet 1291 m The area is in the mountain ringed Tularosa Basin and comprises the southern part of a 710 km² 275 mi² field of white sand dunes composed of gypsum crystals It is the largest gypsum dune field in the world Wikipedia

Exploring White Sands National Monument Mary Maruca, 1997 The mysterious white dunes are brought to life in a large generously illustrated format Find out where the sand came from why it is white and other details of natural and human history in this little known part of the Southwest

Dunes and Dreams Michael E. Welsh, 1995

White Sands and the Southwestern National Monuments 1933-1953 Dietmar Schneider-Hector, 2023-05-09 This is a history of White Sands National Monument from its founding until its departure from the Southwestern National Monuments in 1953 This is not a history of White Sands Missile Range even though elements of its history would become interwoven with the national monument s history This should explain that the emphasis of this history is White Sands as a national monument A few of the National Park Service s administrative goals and struggles against the military s intrusion into its physical boundary and National Park Service policies as highlighted The military s arrival and establishment of permanent army and air force reservations in the Tularosa Basin resulted in the inevitable clash of War Department and Department of the Interior mission objectives The two departments primary missions were incompatible Several of the early encounters between the National Park Service and the military are described to illustrate the problems which existed between the War Department and Department of the Interior The National Park Service s reorganization of Region Three resulted in the removal of White Sands from the Southwestern National Monuments in 1953 Consequently White Sands entered into another phase of its history as a National Park Service national monument

White Sands, 2017

White Sands National Monument Joseph T. II Page, 2013-12-02 The world s largest gypsum dune field the 275 square mile dunes of White Sands National Monument are a geologic oddity more than 250 million years in the making Located in Southern New Mexico the popularity of the monument draws nearly half a million visitors each year to the National Park Service s southwestern region The area is protected from encroachment by the boundaries of the US Army s White Sands Missile Range and houses no less than 144 species of birds 20 unique mammals and 371 types of insects The gypsum s beauty has been captured by photographers and filmmakers for more than a century Both Hollywood and scientists alike have sought after the monument s stunning otherworldly visuals to mimic other countries and worlds The deserts of Qatar were recreated for Transformers 2007 and the monument has been identified as a potential analog site for Mars

White Sands Dietmar Schneider-Hector, 1993 White Sands National Monument in south central New Mexico provides a unique desert experience for the half million tourists who visit each year Schneider Hector s history of White Sands one of
