Closing the Books Edward Carstensen, 2010 Sitting on the terrace of the royal plantation Frederiksgave his favourite retreat Governor Edward Carstensen came to see the inevitable Denmark had to give up her possessions in Africa As fate would have it he came to be the instrument by which two centuries of Danish involvement on the Gold Coast was terminated thereby making way for the emergence of the colonial system that developed there After the abolition of the slave trade Denmark had struggled to find ways and means to legitimate her continued stay at the Coast At an early stage the Danes initiated a number of attempts to establish experimental plantations to cultivate export crops such as cotton coffee and sugar But a transition from slave trade to legitimate products required stability and peace and a need for control which the rather limited Danish presence was not able to maintain CLOSING THE BOOKS comprises a compilation of the official reports that the last Danish Governor sent home during his term of office at the Gold Coast The reports reflect his personal views regarding the economic and political situations there as well as his ideas on the civilization of Africa Friends' Weekly Intelligencer, 1901

The Invention of Religion in Japan Jason Ananda Josephson, Jason Ananda Josephson Storm, 2012-10-03 Throughout its long history Japan had no concept of what we call religion There was no corresponding Japanese word nor anything close to its meaning But when American warships appeared off the coast of Japan in 1853 and forced the Japanese government to sign treaties demanding among other things freedom of religion the country had to contend with this Western idea In this book Jason Ananda Josephson reveals how Japanese officials invented religion in Japan and traces the sweeping intellectual legal and cultural changes that followed More than a tale of oppression or hegemony Josephson s account demonstrates that the process of articulating religion offered the Japanese state a valuable opportunity In addition to carving out space for belief in Christianity and certain forms of Buddhism Japanese officials excluded Shinto from the category Instead they enshrined it as a national ideology while relegating the popular practices of indigenous shamans and female mediums to the category of superstitions and thus beyond the sphere of tolerance Josephson argues that the invention of religion in Japan was a politically charged boundary drawing exercise that not only extensively reclassified the inherited materials of Buddhism Confucianism and Shinto to lasting effect but also reshaped in subtle but significant ways our own formulation of the concept of religion today This ambitious and wide ranging book contributes an important perspective to broader debates on the nature of religion the secular science and superstition
