Animals Are? Frans de Waal, 2016-05-10 A New York Times Bestseller From world renowned biologist and primatologist Frans de Waal a groundbreaking work on animal intelligence destined to become a classic What separates your mind from an animal's Maybe you think it's your ability to design tools your sense of self or your grasp of past and future all traits that have helped us define ourselves as the planet's preeminent species But in recent decades these claims have eroded or even been disproven outright by a revolution in the study of animal cognition Take the way octopuses use coconut shells as tools elephants that classify humans by age gender and language or Ayumu the young male chimpanzee at Kyoto University whose flash memory puts that of humans to shame Based on research involving crows dolphins parrots sheep wasps bats whales and of course chimpanzees and bonobos Frans de Waal explores both the scope and the depth of animal intelligence He offers a firsthand account of how science has stood traditional behaviorism on its head by revealing how smart animals really are and how we've underestimated their abilities for too long People often assume a cognitive ladder from lower to higher forms with our own intelligence at the top But what if it is more like a bush with cognition taking different forms that are often incomparable to ours Would you presume yourself dumber than a squirrel because you're less adept at recalling the locations of hundreds of buried acorns Or would you judge your perception of your surroundings as more sophisticated than that of an echolocating bat De Waal reviews the rise and fall of the mechanistic view of animals and opens our minds to the idea that animal minds are far more intricate and complex than we have assumed De Waal's landmark work will convince you to rethink everything you thought you knew about animal and human intelligence Bulletin, 1916 Includes the following
