Time For Remembering:

Remember Me Davide Sisto,2021-04-13 As the end of December draws near Facebook routinely sends users a short video entitled Your Year on Facebook It lasts about a minute and brings together the images and posts that received the highest number of comments and likes over the last year The video is rounded off with a message from Facebook that reads Sometimes looking back helps us remember what matters most Thanks for being here It is this looking back increasingly the focus of social networks that is the inspiration behind Davide Sisto s brilliant reflection on how our relationship with remembering and forgetting is changing in the digital era The past does not really exist it is only a story we tell ourselves But what happens when we tell this story not only to ourselves but also to our followers when it is recorded not only on our social media pages but also on the pages of hundreds or thousands of others making it something that can be viewed and referenced forever Social media networks are becoming vast digital archives in which the past merges seamlessly with the present slowly erasing our capacity to forget And yet at the same time our memory is being outsourced to systems that we don t control and that could become obsolete at any time cutting us off from our memories and risking total oblivion This timely and thoughtful reflection on memory and forgetting in the digital age will be of interest to students and scholars in media studies and to anyone concerned with the ways our social and personal lives are changing in a world increasingly shaped by social media and the internet

Fashioning Memory Heike Jenss,2015-10-22 The valuing of old clothes as vintage and the recollection of the sartorial past whether through second hand consumption or the wearing of new old fashioned clothes has become a widespread phenomenon This book illuminates sartorial and bodily engagements with memory and time through the temporal and nostalgic potency of fashion and what this means for contemporary wearers Based on in depth ethnographic research including participant observation and interviews with sixties enthusiasts in Germany who relocate British mod style into the twenty first century Jenss examines the practices and experiences that are part of the sartorial remembering of the sixties from hunting flea markets and eBay to the affect of material and mediated memories on vintage wearers Jenss offers unique insights into the fashioning of time cultural memory and modernity tracing the history and current appeal of vintage in fashion and youth culture and asking what kind of experiences of temporality and memory are enacted through fashion How have evaluations of second hand clothes shifted in the twentieth century Fashioning Memory provides a unique insight into the diverse use of fashion as a memory mode and asks how style is remembered performed transformed and reinvested across time place and generation
